POLL SHOWS 57 SENATORS FOR CUT IN INCOME TAX

Canvass by G. O. P. Lists
9 Democrats in Favor of Reduction From 46 to at Least 25 Per Cent.

PRESSURE BACK HOME FOR BIG REDUCTION

Glass and Underwood, the Democratic Leaders, Who Want Cut, Gaining Aid Among Party Men.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.
WASHINGTON, July 13.—Administration leaders are polling Congress to see how far they can go in the reduction of taxes. They are not proposing a "Mellon plan" this time, but hope to report to Secretary Mellon and the President about Sept. 1 what sort of bill can be expected from a close Senate.

Those counted on to aid in reducing the income taxes from 46 percent to at least 25 are:

Republicans—Cameron, Arizona; Shortridge, California; Phipps and Menas, Colorado; McLean and Bingham, Connecticut; Dupont,
Delaware; Gooding, Idaho; Mc-Kinley and Deneen, Illinois; Watson, Indiana; Cummings and Brookhart, Iowa; Curtis and Capper, Kansas; Ernst and Sackett, Kentucky; Fernald and Hale, Maine; Weller, Maryland; Gillett and Butler, Massachusetts; Shall, Minnesota; Williams, Missouri; Howland, Nebraska; Oddie, Nevada; Mose and Keyes, New Hampshire; Edge,
New Jersey; Wadsworth, New York; Willis and Fess, Ohio; Harold and Pine, Oklahoma; McNary and Stanford, Oregon; Pepper and Reed, Pennsylvania; Metcalf, Rhode Island; Norbeck and McMaster, South Dakota; Smoot, Utah;
Green and Dale, Vermont; Jones,
Washington; Goff, West Virginia; Landrum, Wisconsin; Warren, Wisconsin; total, 48.

Democrats—Underwood, Alabama; George, Georgia; Randall and Broussard, Louisiana; Bruce, Maryland; Edwards, New Jersey; Cleveland, New York; Tyson, Tennessee; Glass, Virginia, total, 3.

These Republicans are doubtful:
Johnson, California; Couzens, Michigan; Norris, Nebraska; Borah, Idaho.

Pressure for Lower Levies.
Republican Senators believe that if the vote were taken today without a heated debate, they would have at least 57 votes for a big cut in the income tax. This would bring the maximum surtax levy to about 20 per cent. It is 40 now.

Pressure back home for lower levies has added strength to the present administration movement.
It has whipped a few Democrats into line for heavy surtax cuts.

The influence of Senators Underwood and Glass, who belong to different groups on the Democratic side of the Senate, is being felt.

Other prominent Democrats have announced they were in accord with Underwood and Glass.

The next tax bill will be written by the Senate. The House will have to introduce and pass it first.

The final provisions will be written by the Senate. Senator Smoot, chairman of the Finance Committee, on the one side, and Senators Simmons, Democratic leader in revenue legislation on the other, will shape it.

Simmons favors a heavy cut in levies, but will demand that the bill be fair to all classes. He charges that the original Mellon plan was unfair to the smaller taxpayer, and written for the rich men of the nation.

Simmons has a large following, which he is organizing for a hard fight. He and Senator Underwood represent different factions in the Finance Committee. Republican members of Congress expect a clear-cut tax reduction proposition from President Coolidge on his vacation.

GROCERY FIRM OFFICIAL ROBBED OF $1000 AND CAR

Oscar Conrad Held Up in Front of Store at 4470
Delmar and Forced Into Own Auto.

QUESTIONED ABOUT OTHER RECEIPTS

Two Men Who Apparently Were Familiar With His Collection Rounds Later
Ejected Him From Coupe

Oscar J. Conrad, vice president of the J. F. Conrad Grocery Co., 409 North Eighth street, was robbed of $1000 receipts and his automobile, as he was leaving one of the branch stores, at 4470 Delmar boulevard, at 8:40 a. m., today.

Conrad reported he was intercepted by two men, one of whom displayed a revolver, as he was about to enter his coupe, parked in front of the store, the armed robber thrusting his weapon forward, and commanding Conrad to climb inside. The robbers climbed in also, and Conrad was ordered to drive east, on Delmar boulevard.

At Pendleton avenue, Conrad was ordered to turn north to West Belle avenue, and then east again. Between Sarah street and Vandever avenue, the driver was ordered to halt and "hand over the money."
Conrad surrendered a package containing the money. "Where's the Union avenue store receipts?" one of the robbers demanded. Conrad replied he had not yet visited that store. He was then ordered out of the car.

Conrad furnished a description of the robbers. Although apparently familiar with his custom of entirely familiar with the company stores on Monday, the robbers were not known to Conrad.

The coupe was recovered in front of 3017 Sheridan avenue shortly before noon.

MC MILLAN SHIP TURNS BACK FOR A PROPELLOR

Bowdoin En Route to Arctic Is Forced to Return to Hope-dale, Labrador.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The Bowdoin, one of the ships of the MacMillan Arctic expedition, was compelled to turn back to Hopetown, Labrador, to repair a propeller.

Information on the accident was sent to the National Geographic Society here by radio from the Bowdoin.

The message, not dated, but apparently sent early this morning, said:

"Have ordered Peary to proceed to Godhavn for coal. She left at 1:30 o'clock this morning and damaged propeller on the Bowdoin and before the 600-mile run to Eggin Bay, have decided to return to Hopetown to beach the Bowdoin and fit our spare propeller. Must find good beach free of rocks and sheltered from strong winds."
"Home to leave Hopetown Tuesday 14, weather permitting. Well and happy."

WEED POISON IN MILK FATAL

Illinois Agriculture Department
Acts to Check Disease.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 13.—
Fearing spread of "white" snake root poisoning, which has brought death to several residents in Kankakee and Fayette County, who drank milk from cows poisoned from the weed, Gov. Small today ordered that every available resource of the State Department of Agriculture be thrown into the efforts to check the disease.

TWO DEATHS, 7 CASES OF HEAT PROSTRATION

Temperature Drops Only to 84 at Midnight, Then Begins Upward Climb Again.

Two deaths and seven cases of heat prostration requiring hospital care resulted yesterday, last night and this morning from the heat. Last night was as hot as any St. Louis has experienced this summer, comparing with the night of July 2. A third death may have been due to the heat.

Maximum temperature at the Weather Bureau, on top of the Railway Exchange Building, yesterday, was 96 at 1:15 p. m. and the mercury did not drop below 94 till after 6 p. m. By midnight it had dropped only to 84, which was higher than the midnight mark of July 2. The lowest was 80 at 4 and 5 o'clock this morning, and then began an upward climb the night was 81.

Roy Elston, 55 years old, proprietor of a confectionery at 1714
North Fourteenth street, was found dead from the heat in his bed in rooms above the store this morning. He had complained yesterday of the weather's effect on him.

Patrick Connor, 40, an orderly at Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, died there from the heat at 4 p.
m. yesterday, shortly after having been prostrated. His home is thought to have been in Alton, where it is supposed he had relatives.

An autopsy will be necessary to determine whether heat or other cause was responsible for the death of Mrs. Ida Hutt, 57, a widow, who was found dead at her home, 1115 High street, by visitors at 7:15 p. m. yesterday.

Charles M. Stewart, 54, of 1331A
Franklin avenue,
John Curtin, 43, of 4433 Lucky street; prostrated at Wells and Cockrell avenues.

Mrs. Jennie Carrio, 17, of 1415
North Eleventh street.
Harry Mouldin, of 1120 North Eighteenth street.

Thomas Elliot, 58, of 205 South
Broadway, found in front of 117
North Seventh street; has temperature of 111.

Mrs. Nellie Ashlock, 16, of 8229 Michigan avenue; collapsed in front of 1109 Olive street.

Heavy Rain Brings Relief from Heat in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 13.— Heavy rain late yesterday brought relief from the sweltering heat here. In a period of 20 minutes the mercury dropped from 95 degrees to 79. A bolt of lightning struck the aerial of WDAF, the Kansas City Star's radio station, and burned out a condenser in the transmitter.

TWO RESERVE FLYERS KILLED

WESTBURY, N. Y., July 13.—
First Lieutenants Charles R.
Hickey of Brockton, Mass., and Albert C. Perry of Marlboro, Mass., were killed today when their airplane crashed near here.

Lieuts. Hickey and Perry were reserve officers stationed at Mitchell Field for two weeks training.

DIES AFTER STUBBING HIS TOE

LYNN, Mass., July 12.—Charles E. Pinkham died here today from blood poisoning caused by stubbing his toe last Christmas Day while climbing the stairs in the Washington Monument. He was 75 years old and was born in Barrington, Nova Scotia.

WATER FLOODS TUBES OF NEW YORK SUBWAY

Main Bursts and Traffic Is Tied Up, Electric Lights Extinguished, Buildings Flooded.

NEW YORK, July 13.—An underground river suddenly came into existence in the heart of Manhattan early today, seriously effecting subway traffic.

Water from a broken 20-inch main at Forty-second and Fifth avenue, flooded three tubes at the Grand Central railroad terminal for a distance of a mile. In some places the water reached a depth of six feet.

Traffic had to cease in the Queensboro subway which runs under Forty-second street. In another tube at a higher level under the same street shuttle trains ran from Grand Central station to Times Square. These trains were stopped for 15 minutes and then allowed to proceed on one track.
Water flowed into the East Side subway which serves Brooklyn and the Bronx but traffic continued.

Fear that nearby buildings might be undermined prompted the police to prohibit all vehicular traffic between Sixth and Madison avenues and Fortieth and Forty-fifth streets.

Thousands of persons returning from Sunday outings were compelled to use other means of travel to their homes. Police reserves were called to guard subway platforms and thoroughfares. Electric street lights in the vicinity of the broken main were short-circuited and extinguished by seeping water. Many business tenements were flooded.

Pumps manned by scores of laborers were set in operation to force the water into sewers.

Fear that the waters would sweep away foundations of skyscrapers was allayed today by W.
C. Lancaster, engineer of the Transit Commission, who expressed confidence that the supports of the buildings were undamaged and there was no danger. His views were corroborated by C. M. Pickney, chief engineer of the Department of Public Works.

The great undermining force of the waters was shown when a hole 30 feet square suddenly appeared in the pavement at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street. Traffic became disorganized and the aid of police reserves from nearby stations was required before order was restored.

SENTENCED FOR BUCKETING

Two Former Brokers Get Year
Each in Atlanta.

NEW YORK, July 13.—George Field and George W. Morse, former heads of two brokerage firms which failed for a total of $3,200, 600 in 1922, today were sentenced in Federal court to serve one year and one day each in Atlanta prison for bucketing customers' orders.

Their trial began last week, but before it "ended both pleaded guilty."

New Englanders were principally the victims of the convicted men's operations. The prosecution charged that these investors were extorted out of millions of dollars.
The specific charge against Field and Morse was use of the mails to defraud. Shortly before their original firm failed with $200,000 liabilities they organized another firm under the name of George W.
Morse & Co., which failed for $2-600,000 in 1922.

MOTION TO QUASH ARGUED AT THE EVOLUTION TRIAL

Indictment and Statute Attacked by Defense Counsel as Not Within the Constitution.

prosecution counsel, a typical country lawyer, in reply to the State, declared that the only issue was whether the State had the power to exclude from its schools any theory which it believed injurious to its children's morals. The State did not allow the teaching of the Bible, he said, and it didn't allow the teaching of that which denied the Bible. In the course of his argument he made several apparently sarcastic references to "the distinguished New York and Chicago lawyers who have come down here to tell us poor country people what we can teach our children."

After a considerable amount of this, Dudley Field Malone arose with white face and said:

"I ask that the Court compel Mr. McKenzie to confine himself to the matter at issue here, which is a motion to quash this indictment. I trust there will be no further references, except in good humor, to the geographical connections of the attorneys. We are here as American citizens living under the American Constitution, sworn as lawyers to uphold that Constitution and the laws of the nation. We ask no indulgence and we will endure no disparagements."

McKenzie's mouth fell open, and he stared at Malone wordlessly. It was a particularly dramatic moment, because a good deal of Dayton had been enthusiastically forecasting how "General Ben" would "eat the defense alive" when he got into action. Just now he looked painfully like a man who had been unexpectedly kicked in the stomach. Judge Raulston intervened.

"You don't know Gen. McKenzie like we do, Mr. Malone, or you would realize that everything he says is in good humor," he said. "Oh, certainly, certainly. Why, I love you like a brother," said the General, getting his breath. But Malone did not unbend an inch. After that, McKenzie confined his argument entirely to the reading of citations.

Wordings of Statute.

The title of the anti-evolution bill refers to the theory of evolution, while the text of the bill refers to the theory of the descent of man which conflicts with the divine story of creation as contained in the Bible.

The defense contends that this violates the constitution, provision that a bill shall contain only one subject, that to be described in the title. In other words, the act cannot be broader than the title.

Resuming the argument for the State at the opening of the afternoon session, Attorney-General Stewart denied that this was true in the case of this statute. With reference to the Constitution's injunction to the Legislature to cherish literature and science, Stewart said it was merely a suggestion, and that the Legislature had the right to exercise its discretion in construing it. It merely reflected the general sentiment of the people that education should be fostered, he said.

"If they had intended that the Legislature should recognize science over the Bible, they would have said so," he declared.

"But let's it a fact," Neal interrupted, "that it would be impossible to cherish science under this law."

"I don't think so," Stewart replied. "This law doesn't interfere in any way with religious worship. It addresses itself purely to the public school system. How could it interfere in any particular with religious worship?"

Darrow Interrupts.

"What we contend is that it gives preference to a particular religious establishment," Darrow put in.

"How does it?" countered Stewart.

"Why, by giving preference to the Bible in the schools," was the blunt retort.

"Isn't it," interrupted Malone, "an invasion of the civil right of a child to have a particular religious opinion from the Bible imposed upon a course of science which that child must study in the public schools, when the Constitution plainly declares that no preference shall be given to any religious establishment?"

"It's a plain exercise of the police power of the State," Stewart answered.

"Suppose that child or his parents do not believe in that particular religious book," said Malone. "When that child is forced to accept, as part of a course in biology, a religious opinion from that religious book, do you mean to say it isn't an invasion of the right of freedom of religious thought?"

Stewart said he didn't think so. "Couldn't the student hear that opinion at the school on Friday and go to his own church and hear his own doctrine on Sunday?" he said.

"Yes, but he has just as much right to have his civil rights protected in school on Friday as he has to have them protected in his church on Sunday," was Malone's reply.

Neal declared that the law was unconstitutional on the following grounds:

That the law is so vague and indefinite that it is impossible of enforcement.

That the law violates the provision of the State Constitution which provides that a bill shall contain only one subject and that it be described in the title.

That it violates the provision enjoining the Legislature to cherish education, literature and science.

That it violates the clause providing that each house of the Legislature must hear and vote three times on a bill before it can become a law. That it is in violation of the guarantee of freedom of conscience and liberty of worship.

That it deprives citizens of their rights, privileges and property.

That it is class legislation favoring a particular religious sect.

That it violates the guarantee that every man shall have a fair and impartial jury.

That it violates the Federal Constitutional guarantee of freedom of worship, and that it abridges the rights and immunities of a citizen and deprives him of his liberty without due process.

There are as many different interpretations of the Bible story of creation as there are persons who read it," Neal asserted. "Your honor would have to assume legislative power to declare which of these is to be accepted in determining whether Scopes taught a theory which conflicted with it."

Neal also asked that the indictment be quashed on the ground that the indictment was vague.

Court Again Opposed With Prayer; Radio Installed.

The sun shone hot upon Dayton at 9 a. m. when court opened today, and occasional fresh breezes which blew down the valley did not cool the courtroom and collared with the neckband of his shirt turned under and a palm leaf fan in his hand. He wore half sleeves.

Radio apparatus to broadcast the trial had been installed and the enclosure at the front of the room bristled with microphone posts. There was one in front of each counsel table, one by the witness stand and one on the Judge's desk. Station WGN of Chicago is doing the broadcasting.

Fifteen minutes after the time set for court to open Judge Raulston was still posing on the bench for photographers, while a shirt-sleeved reporter sat at the corner of his desk and interviewed him. After 20 minutes the secret of the delay in opening the proceedings was revealed. Judge Raulston said he was giving the electricians time to repair a defect in the broadcasting apparatus.

Prayer Opens Court.

At 9:30 the Judge called the court to order and asked the Rev. Stewart to read the opening prayer.

"Gentlemen, the issues in this case are profound and the Court does not wish to guess," adding that he would expect briefs to be filed on the motion to quash.

The custom of opening court with prayer may become an issue, Darrow, while he has made no formal statement on the floor of the court, is known to have protested informally to Judge Raulston.

Judge Raulston said that he would not depart from his custom of having prayer daily at the opening of court and of Darrow persisted in his protest to the extent of entering it in the record, the Court would rule that the question was one to be determined by the conscience of the Judge and the resulting responsibility would be the Judge's alone.

one Jew has ever died from tuberculosis, he said.

"Monkeytown," "Monkeyville" and "Monkey Center" are some of the nicknames applied to Dayton by its neighbors, but one suspect the decision is inspired by envy. It doesn't seem to worry Dayton.

A few minutes before court opened today, Mrs. W. J. Bryan, an invalid, was carried up the stairs by two men and rolled into the courtroom in a wheel chair. Her husband attended solicitously to her comfort. Camera men ground busily issuing peremptory orders to judges, lawyers and other participants.

When a photographer posed Judge and counsel, Judge Raulston raised his hand and asked, "Where's Scopes?" and the picture was not taken until the defendant added himself to the group.

Judge Caverly was criticized for allowing the Leopold-Loeb case to be converted into a hippodrome. It resembled a session of the United States Supreme Court compared with this.

One can't make out whether some of the participants regard it as a Chicago meeting or a revival. Certainly not as a criminal trial.

WIDOW'S CLAIM QUESTIONED

Belleville Man's Brother Denies Her Right to Estate.

Harry Oexner of Belleville, has filed a petition in the Belleville Probate Court asking Judge Perrin to vacate an order entered recently appointing the First National Bank of Belleville administrator of the estate of his brother, George Oexner, who died in St. Vincent's Hospital six weeks ago.

The bank was appointed on application made to the court by Mrs. Dorrest Oexner of Peoria, Ill., who claims to be the widow of the deceased. Mrs. Oexner declares that she married Oexner in Des Moines, Ia., three years ago and that she will produce a marriage certificate to substantiate her claim. Harry Oexner, a brother of the deceased, questions the claim of Mrs. Oexner that she is the widow of his brother. Mrs. Oexner declares that she is also entitled to $100 insurance held by her husband at the time of his death. No date for the hearing of the petition has been set.

Real Hope of Defense.

While the defense proposes to put in as much expert testimony in support of evolution as the court will admit, it is upon this motion to quash that the real hope of the defense rests. The principle involved in the passage of such legislation, not the facts in Scopes' individual case, is the real issue at stake, and Neal carefully laid the foundation for the appeal to high courts. He emphasized, however, that Judge Raulston had not only the power but the duty to declare the law unconstitutional, if he so regarded it.

When the court of the jury was called, William G. Day filed objection to his name carried officially as "Bill." This was corrected.

The courtroom again was crowded to capacity and scores stood in corridors and along the walls.

At the entrance to the courtroom, boys laden with cushions posted themselves and peddled their wares to prospective spectators. They found few buyers, however.

Scores of persons, unable to find seats in the courtroom, returned to the courthouse lawn and grouped themselves about amplifiers.

Judge Raulston just before ordering the noon recess said to the lawyers:

"Gentlemen, the issues in this case are profound and the Court does not wish to guess," adding that he would expect briefs to be filed on the motion to quash.

JEWELRY VALUED AT $3000 STOLEN IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Jewelry valued at $3000, uninsured, was reported stolen between 8:20 p. m. and 11:15 p. m., Saturday, from the home in East St. Louis of Louis Rochman, president of the National Iron Co.

Glass in a basement window at 721 North Thirteenth street was broken and a door at the head of the basement stairs was forced open. The house was ransacked. The jewelry was taken from a dresser drawer. It included a one-carat and three-quarter-carat diamond ring, a lavaliere with three diamonds, and a pair of three-quarter-carat diamond earrings, besides less valuable items.

Training Camp Assignments.

The Officers' Reserve Corps and the Students' Reserve Corps trainings camps will enroll a number from Edwinstown this week. Capt. C. E. Guellich and Lieut. Douglas M. Hadley leave Wednesday for Jefferson Barracks, Mo. They will be accompanied by Robert Halliart, Maynard Mott and John Cline. Clement and Clyde Bothman, brothers, are assigned to Camp Greaser, Mich.

FOR UNIFORM TRAFFIC SIGNALS

Granite City Man Thinks They Should Be Standardized.

By the Associated Press. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 12.—The prediction that it would only be a short time before traffic signal systems throughout the United States would be standardized was made by Arthur T. Morley, Granite City, Ill., chairman of the committee of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, at its meeting at the Hotel Traymore here today and tomorrow to map out plans for a convention to be held in Washington later in the year. Traffic experts from all sections of the country are represented at the committee meetings.

Morley, referring to the accident toll on streets and highways during 1923, the last year for which figures are available, said that there were 12,600 deaths and 678,000 serious personal injury accidents. Not a few of these, he said, were due to the lack of uniformity in the traffic signals throughout the country. "During the last 10 years," he said, "automobile accidents have doubled. The total in 1923 was about 14 per cent greater than the year previous. The economic loss has been estimated at not less than $400,000,000 annually."

Court to Close for Funeral.

The Madison County Circuit Court at Edwardsville will be closed tomorrow in memory of Adolph W. Degenfelder, its built, who died suddenly at his home Thursday night after having been in attendance upon court that day. His funeral will be at 9 a. m., with services at St. Boniface's Catholic Church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. J. Eckhardt.

Address by George Siler.

George Siler, manager of the Browns baseball team, will address the Scottish Rite Club at a luncheon at the American Annex Hotel tomorrow. He will relate some of the outstanding incidents in the training season of the team, and tell of situations which often develop on the diamond to test the mettle of the management and players.

MOVE TO END RECEIVERSHIP FOR DEAN ONATVIA CO.

Creditors Overhaul $2,500,000 Reorganization Fund for Brokerage House.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, July 12.—With a reorganization fund of $2,500,000 overhauled, Western receivers for Dean Onatvia & Co. went before Federal Judge Wilkeson today in a move to end the receivership. The receivers and banker creditors are confident business will be resumed this week.

Abel Davis, president of the Chicago Title and Trust Co., receivers for the broker's house since July 2, said today the reorganization fund aggregated $2,500,000 and $2,500,000, secured by personal notes of the nine partners.

New York and Chicago creditors contributed to the fund equally, but the Eastern banks holding collateral accepted deferred payment arrangements extending over two years, while the Chicago participants in the reorganization project accepted paper extending over five years.

The success of the approved plan will re-establish the business without loss to creditors or customers. The losses of the partners may be considerable, but cannot be estimated until the future value of the Rosenbaum Grain Corporation stock, which was heavily held by Dean Onatvia, is determined.

The reorganization notes are backed by the Rosenbaum stock, which will be redeemed by the brokers at the market as the deferred obligations are met. The partners' losses, therefore, will be determined by the degree of prosperity and profits in the future of the Rosenbaum company.

LINEMAN SERIOUSLY BURNED

Held Suspended by Life Belt When Injured on Pole.

Joseph Kitchell, 29 years old, of 1424A Montrose avenue, a lineman for the Union Electric Light & Power Co., was shocked and severely burned today by a live wire while working on a light pole at Broadway and Brooklyn street.

He was rendered unconscious and held suspended by his life belt, until taken down by a hook and ladder company of the Fire Department. He was rushed to the Union Electric office, and revived by physicians and sent to Josephine Hospital. Doctors said he would lose a finger of the right hand, and that he had been seriously burned on the right hand and leg.

FATHER OF SLAIN CHICAGO GIRL HAD LIVED IN ST. LOUIS

Gregory White, Estranged Father, Returned Home Hearing of Daughter's Death.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Edward Costello, who first confessed to the murder of Madeline White, Thursday night, today was a writ of habeas corpus by the Cook County Superior Court. State's Attorney announced that Costello would be immediately booked on formal charges of murder.

Attorneys for the prisoner claimed their client had been treated by the police and had been since Friday morning without rest until today, when he was given a breakfast.

Despite this plea, Judge John S. Sullivan refused to caution the police regarding their treatment of Costello.

Miss White was buried today. The funeral was attended by her father, Gregory White, who had been estranged from St. Louis where he learned of Madeline's fate. His mother is in the county hospital suffering from tuberculosis and it was her illness that left Madeline and another daughter to their own devices.

DEUT. M'NAMARA SHOT; AID KILLS NEGRO ASSAILANT

Police Officer, 70, Wounded After Assuring William Tate, Stabbed in Fight, He Would Not Be Harmed.

TWO FINGERS OF RIGHT HAND OFF

John Roland, Special Policeman, After Superior's Weapon Fell, Inflicted Fatal Injuries to Negro.

Police Lieut. James H. McNamara, 70 years old, was shot and seriously wounded at 5 p. m. yesterday at 1709 North Tenth street by a negro who was then shot and killed by Special Officer John Roland.

The negro, William Tate, 20 years old, of the Tenth street address, previously had engaged in a drinking bout and knife duel with James Barefield, negro, of 1709 1/2 North Tenth street, both being stabbed.

Lieut. McNamara, touring the South Market Street District in an automobile driven by Roland, saw a signal lamp flash at Fourteenth and Chambers street and learned by telephone of the stabbing. With Roland he drove to the Tenth street address and met three policemen who came direct from the station.

Negro Fires on Police. Up the stairway to the third floor the police went. McNamara is the lead. Tate and his mother, Ida, were in a front room to one side. Tate aimed a "pump" shotgun at the police and said: "I'll kill the first white man that enters this room."

Mrs. Tate stepped between her son and the police and pleaded with him not to shoot. He threatened to kill her. McNamara, who had drawn his revolver, said to Tate: "Drop that gun, we're not going to hurt you."

But Tate pulled the trigger. There was no explosion. He pumped another shell and pulled the trigger. The charge struck McNamara's right hand, knocking his revolver away, and scattered against his face.

Roland maneuvered to avoid shooting the woman and fired four times at Tate, the four bullets wounding him in the stomach, hip and leg.

"All right, Mac, I got him," Roland said to Lieut. McNamara.

Two Fingers Amputated. McNamara and Tate were taken to City Hospital, where Tate died at 6:30 p. m. The first two fingers of McNamara's right hand had been badly lacerated. Amputation was necessary. The buckshot penetrated 14 places in the right side of his neck and face, one shot lodging in his right eyebrow. Physicians believe he will recover, and that his sight will not be impaired.

Mrs. Tate was arrested as a witness, but later released. Barefield is being treated at City Hospital for his knife wounds.

McNamara is one of the oldest policemen on the force, in age and years of service. He became a policeman in 1887, was made a sergeant in 1891, a lieutenant in 1893, promoted to sergeant in 1897, a political upheaval, and returned to the rank of lieutenant in 1906. He is active and recently was mentioned for a captaincy. His widow with his wife and two grown children at 3115 Vine Grove avenue.

Roland is 43 years old and has been a policeman for 18 years. He is married and resides at 4205 Oakland avenue.

There was no competition. The contracts will be awarded July 22.

DROWNED

WILLIAM H. WALTON.

EDWARD F. WALTON.

Two brothers, William H. Walton, 41 years old, and Edward F. Walton, 36, of 3955 North Eleventh street, were drowned yesterday afternoon in the Missouri River, as the wife of the younger man watched his attempt to save his brother.

The older brother had left the picnic party for a swim about 100 yards above the junction of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, after being warned to be careful by his husband, Mrs. Walton said. When only a few feet from the bank, he sank, then reappeared, calling for help.

"I was frantic when Edward, without even so much as taking off his shoes, plunged into the water," Mrs. Walton said. "He struck out for his brother, but never reached him. He too, disappeared, without a word, never coming to the surface. Both were good swimmers."

Mrs. Walton was taken to her home by Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Mead, the other members of the party, and Mr. and Mrs. George Haas, 6804 Minnesota avenue, who were attracted to the scene by Mrs. Walton's cries.

William, a carpenter, was unmarried. Edward was a conductor on the Broadway street car line.

The bodies were not recovered.

IGOE-MILLER CONTEST RECOUNT ENTERS ITS SECOND WEEK

Attorneys for Democrat Seek Permission to Compile Additional Data.

The Igoe-Miller contest, recount of votes cast in the election for Mayor April 7, entered its second week today. In six days last week the 23 precincts of the First Ward and the first two precincts of the Second were counted, and little was found to change the official returns for those precincts.

The Election Board today considered the request of attorneys for William L. Igoe that they be permitted to take data in addition to that furnished for the direct information of the Circuit Court in the contest. Objection has been made to the request, on the ground that it might lead to showing how individuals voted.

There are 624 precincts, so that at the rate of 25 a week it would take nearly 25 weeks to make the recount. But the board expects its vote to pick up speed as the work progresses. Mayor Miller's official plurality was 3129.

Poisoned Bread Charge Denied. A woman was questioned last night by the police on complaint of Mrs. Mary Rainwater, 375 Olive street, who said someone had thrown bread saturated with carbolic acid in the yard where Mrs. Rainwater's children play.

The woman denied having thrown the bread in the yard or that she had abused Mrs. Rainwater's children. She gave a bond to answer any charge that might be placed against her.

SWISS ACT AGAINST CULT

40 Back-to-Nature Followers Arrested. Literature Destroyed. Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Publisher Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch).

BERNE, July 13.—The usually tolerant Swiss have finally revolted against indiscretions of the back-to-nature cult and the so-called sun worshippers who have made a fetish of nudeness.

Forty men and women have been arrested because of the absence or brevity of their clothes. This constitutes the first rebuff of an increasingly popular cult. The magistrate followed up the reform wave by stripping kiosks of risqué literature and photographs.

FORMER OFFICIAL SURRENDERS

Ernest Williams, former city inspector of Granite City, who has been indicted charged with shorting in his accounts approximating $2100, surrendered to a Madison County Deputy Sheriff yesterday, after having been missing since the early part of May. A reward of $300 had been offered by the City Council for his arrest.

BROTHERS DROWN, ONE TRYING TO SAVE THE OTHER

DRY AGENTS OPEN SALOON TO CATCH TOWN VIOLATORS

Proprietors of "Uncle Sam's Place" Cause Arrest of 200 in Peoria, Ill.

By the Associated Press. PEORIA, Ill., July 13.—Under the banner "Uncle Sam's Place," the Government went into the saloon business in Peoria two months ago, obtained the confidence of the city's rum dealers, and gathered evidence leading to wholesale raids in which nearly 200 arrests were made.

J. E. Asher and Max Hartzig, Washington prohibition agents, came to Peoria in May, purchased a saloon and erected the sign "Uncle Sam's Place." Established bootleggers viewed the legend with considerable amusement and soon established connections with newcomers, who began making purchases from dealers and liquor runners, obtaining evidence against virtually every saloon in town.

The liquor dealers found the laugh was on them when Uncle Sam's proprietors suddenly closed shop Saturday, went to the Federal Building to meet 40 agents from Chicago and Washington, and began a systematic cleanup of the city which extended until late Sunday night.

Among the places raided were roadhouses and dance resorts, where the agents had purchased liquor. Many of those gathered in the Government net were sent to jail when they were unable to furnish bond before a United States Commissioner.

TETANUS FATAL TO BOY HURT BY BLANK PISTOL

Lewis Fretz, Who Shot Self Accidentally, Concealed Injury From Parents.

Lewis Fretz, 14 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Fretz, 57614 Elm avenue, died of tetanus yesterday at City Hospital, following a bullet wound in the neck sustained on July 4 from a blank cartridge pistol.

The boy's possession of the pistol was not known to his parents, and to conceal it from them he took it to bed with him. About 8 a. m. July 4, he was playing with the pistol under the bed cover and it exploded under the blank cartridge, burning him on the body.

He also concealed this fact from his parents, and went without medical attention until July 10, when it was discovered that he had a fully developed case of tetanus, too far advanced to yield to antitoxin. This was the third fatality from tetanus growing out of the Fourth of July celebration.

FIVE TO PRESS BUTTONS FOR EXECUTION OF NEGRO FRIDAY

Real Hangman of Leon Williams, Convicted Murderer, Will Be Unaware of Fact.

The hour for the hanging of Leon Williams, negro murderer, whose execution is scheduled by the Supreme Court for next Friday, has been fixed for 8 a. m. of that day. Sheriff Schuler announced today. The execution will take place on the fifth and sixth floors of the city jail.

Several departures from the custom attending on hangings have been planned by the Sheriff. Chief among these is an installation which will keep everyone connected with the execution in ignorance of the identity of the man who springs the trap.

Sheriff Schuler will ask Comptroller Nolte's approval for an expenditure to install five electric buttons in the jail building. One of them will control an electric circuit which will spring the trap. The others will be "blanks." No one but the electrician who puts them in will know which button carries the current which will drop the condemned man to sterner.

The death watch, which customarily lasts for 72 hours preceding the execution, has been reduced to 48 hours by Sheriff Schuler. During that time the condemned man will be kept alone in a tier of cells, with two deputies constantly with him.

Williams and three other negroes were found guilty of the murder of Harry Leonard in an attempted holdup in his soft drink bar at Twenty-second and Randolph streets. Two of the others are under death sentence, and the fourth under sentence of life imprisonment. Their cases are pending in Supreme Court.

WOMAN TEACHER LEAPS OFF BOAT; SWIMS ASHORE

Act of Miss Nola Posson of Milwaukee on River Trip Attributed to Nervous Attack.

Every summer, hundreds of excursionists from Chicago and points north of that city come to St. Louis and make the Tennessee River steamboat trip. The return portion of this trip, up the Mississippi from Cairo to St. Louis, is the slow part, and the passengers sometimes talk about jumping overboard and swimming to land. But Miss Nola Posson, a Milwaukee school teacher, is the first one who has actually done it.

Late Saturday night, after the steamer Tennessee Belle had left Cape Girardeau, bound for St. Louis, and while its stern wheel was plowing up the muddy waters at the rate of 8 or 10 miles an hour, Miss Posson stepped from her stateroom, clad in a light gown, and leaped over the boat's rail.

Eludes Searchers in Lifeboat. A nurse, who had been attending her in her stateroom because of an attack of nervousness, was just too late to stop her. The nurse called members of the boat's crew, and the Tennessee Belle was stopped, and a lifeboat launched.

The young woman was not found, and it was concluded, on board, that she had drowned. But instead, Miss Posson, who is a good swimmer, had struck out for land, a quarter of a mile distant, and with some effort had made it. She rested on the shore, and yesterday morning she appeared at a farmhouse 12 miles north of Cape Girardeau.

The young woman appeared nervous, and neighbors took her to Cape Girardeau, where she was placed in a hospital. She talked in a manner which caused the hospital authorities to think that she had been molested in some manner on the boat. A telegram was sent to the St. Louis police, asking the boat arrived here yesterday afternoon, a police detail kept all the passengers on board until an inquiry had been made.

Had Suffered Nervous Attack. From Miss Louise Parker, also a Milwaukee school teacher, who had shared Miss Posson's stateroom, and from the boat's officers and other passengers, including a physician, the police learned that the young woman had suffered an attack of nervousness Saturday, and that attempt had been made to keep her in her stateroom.

Miss Parker left for Cape Girardeau, planning to take Miss Posson home. Both live in Milwaukee, and teach in Whitefish Bay, Wis.

THEATER CASHIER HELD UP, BUT ROBBERS GET NO LOOT

Woman Employee of King's Stopped in Auto on Her Way to Bank.

Two robbers in an automobile held up Miss Elsie Betzold of 5525 Reebing boulevard, cashier of King's Theater, as she was on her way to the Chouteau Trust Co., at Vandeventer and Chouteau avenues, at 10:30 a. m. today. After searching the car and finding nothing, they fled empty-handed.

Miss Betzold, who was driving a Ford sedan, was forced to the curb a few doors from the bank by the robbers in a Studebaker car. They alighted and demanded "the money," but Miss Betzold informed them she carried no money. "Get up, then, and let's take a look," one of the robbers demanded. She complied and the robbers searched under the cushions. Finding nothing, they returned to their own car and disappeared westward in Chouteau avenue.

Miss Betzold proceeded to the bank and telephoned the police. On May 18 last two employees of the theater, on their way to the Chouteau Trust Co., were held up in Forest Park and robbed of $1700 theater receipts.

RADIO DISPROVES EVOLUTION, SAYS CHURCH HISTORIAN

Prof. W. G. Polack of Concordia Seminary Argues If Man Can Do So Much, Creator Can Do Infinitely More.

The belief of the Evangelical Lutheran Church that man and the universe were formed by divine and direct creative acts, and not by an evolutionary process, was set forth in the most positive fashion in a radio sermon preached last night by Prof. W. G. Polack of Concordia Seminary, at the seminary's air station, KFUP.

Prof. Polack occupies the chair of church history in the seminary, in which Lutheran ministers are trained for service in all parts of the United States and in foreign mission fields.

He referred in his sermon to the radio as illustrative of the power of man over the forces of nature, and argued that, when man can do so much, a divine and infinite power should be able to do infinitely more.

"No man, be he ever so wise and learned, is in position to know anything of himself regarding the origin of himself and the universe," Prof. Polack said. "What man may know regarding the origin of things, God has revealed to us in His holy word. This revelation man should accept in faith, even as the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews says, 'Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear.'"

"God Alone, Can Create." "God created this world. It is not the result of a process of evolution, but the result of God's creative powers. The first chapter of the Bible describes the creation in detail. Through His almighty fiat, God called things that did not exist before into being. He spoke, and it was done. The world which we inhabit sprang into existence out of nothing by virtue of the omnipotent word of God.

"That is the meaning of the word 'create.' To bring forth out of nothing by the word. It is used about 50 times in the Old Testament, and is always used in reference to God. God alone can create, that is, produce something out of nothing by His omnipotent word.

"There were six creative days in the beginning, in which God called the things that are into being; six natural days of 24 hours each, days consisting of a period of darkness and a period of light, succeeding one another. Each day was marked by evening and morning. They were not periods of indeterminate length, say of a thousand years, or a million years, or more. Every unbiased reader will find nothing else than six natural days described in the first chapter of Genesis. That is the understanding which Scripture itself places on them. Much later, when God established the Sabbath as a day of rest, he said, 'Six days shalt thou labor, * * * for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth.'"

Man a Special Creation. The last of the Creator's creatures was man. Him God made to crown the whole. As if to anticipate the unbelief theories of a later age, the sacred record lays special emphasis on the fact that God made man. Man did not evolve from the lower animals through a long-drawn-out process, but man came forth from the hands of his Creator as a special creation.

"Let us adhere to the rockbound fundamental truths of our holy religion. Let us not be ensnared by the false teachings of those who dishonor their Creator by denying their own creation. To use the classic words of Luther: 'I believe that God has made me and all creatures; that He has given me my body and soul, eyes and ears and all my members, my reason and all my senses.'"

Flag Display Asked for Reunion. Mayor Miller today issued a statement requesting business houses, factories and residences to display the national colors during the reunion of the Third Division of the A. E. F. in St. Louis, Wednesday to Saturday, inclusive.

Delegates to Kansas City Convention View Stunt Flying and Later Attend Opera Here.

A real army meal, served in mess kits in army quarters, was a feature of the entertainment at Scott Field yesterday of visiting delegates to the convention of the American Institute of Banking at Kansas City. Exhibition flying of airplanes and airplanes filled the afternoon.

The army-style luncheon, served as a novelty, consisted of beans, corn bread, white bread, molasses, onions, pickles and radishes. About 600 men and women partook of guests of Lieutenant-Colonel John A. Paegelow, Scott Field commandant, including the delegates, who departed for Kansas City last night; members of their families and local members of the institute and relatives.

Arriving in St. Louis yesterday morning, the delegates had breakfast at the First National Bank's restaurant. Their supper was at the Federal Reserve Bank and this evening was spent at the performance of "Erminie" at the Municipal Theater.

Formation flying by three bombing planes from Chanute, Fla.; Rantoul, Ill., was followed by a display of their bombing prowess in destroying a condemned observation balloon in the air. Five National Guard planes from Lehigh, Pa., were followed by a display of their bombing prowess in destroying a condemned observation balloon in the air. TC-7 and TA-3, two Scott Field airplanes, were put through their aerial paces, attracting the usual attention because of their unusual appearance. A little Sperry messenger plane was flown in tricks by a cadet. Three other cadets put off in a triple flight of free balloons.

As well as inspecting the great hangar and the other buildings, many of the men visitors took advantage of the field's indoor swimming pool. A silver loving cup was presented to Col. Paegelow by the Entertainment Committee of the St. Louis chapter of the institute, in recognition of his co-operation.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" is Far Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes the three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drug store.

MAN KILLED WHEN TRUCK IS OVERTURNED

Driver Flees From Scene but Is Arrested Later After Fight With Police.

DEAD. Michael Grams, 19 years old, chauffeur, of the Holland Hotel, Sixth street and Franklin avenue.

INJURED. Peter Giannarino, 44, of 2028 Cass avenue, fractured skull, cuts and bruises.

Steve Obremaki, 18, of 1732 North Eleventh street, fractured left arm, lacerations of the head and body.

Michael Regan, 65, of 8216 Michigan avenue, probable fracture of the skull, fractured right knee and bruises.

Mrs. Mary Garland, 28, of 2324 West University street, shock and lacerations of the scalp and body.

Virginia Garland, 4, of 2324 West University street, lacerations of the scalp and right leg.

Mrs. William Birkenbach, 48, of 2736 South Tenth street, injuries to left thigh and left hand.

Joseph Blacky, 47, of 2002 Victor street, bruises and lacerations to arms and hands.

Elmer McCarter, 30, of 4245A Swan avenue, his wife, Gladys, 28, and daughter, Mary, 2, bruises and lacerations.

Arthur McCarter, 6703 Glades avenue, his wife, May, 24, and son, Robert, 4, bruises and lacerations.

Joseph Burger, 4447 Easton avenue, cuts and bruises.

Frederick Redding, 39, of 4233W Cosens avenue, fractured skull, lacerations of head and face.

One man was killed and two were seriously injured shortly after 6 p. m. yesterday when an automobile truck, in which they were riding, overturned in front of 1325 North Eighth street. The fatality brought the total of automobile deaths for the year to 84, as compared with 76 for the same period last year.

Yesterday's victim was Michael Grams, 19 years old, a chauffeur residing at the Holland Hotel, Sixth street and Franklin avenue. He suffered a fractured skull and crushed chest when caught under the machine, and was dead when he was taken to the City Hospital, a few minutes later.

The injured were Peter Giannarino, 44 years old, a bricklayer, of 2028 Cass avenue, who suffered a fractured skull and cuts and bruises, and Steve Obremaki, 18, a laborer, of 1732 North Eleventh street, who suffered a fractured left arm and lacerations of the head and body. Both were taken to the City Hospital. Giannarino's condition is critical.

Cause of the Accident. The three were riding north in Eighth street in the truck, driven by Ray Carro, 22, a huckster, of 1418 North Eleventh street, when the accident occurred, the machine overturning when Carro swerved suddenly to avoid southbound traffic.

When police officers reached the spot, the driver had rigoted his machine and fled from the scene. He was traced to his home, however, and there was subdued after a struggle in which his wife and two sisters joined. Lieut. Smythe of the Third District, suffering a fractured finger, and Sergeant Kiloa receiving bruises about the face in the encounter. Carro, bearing abrasions of the face as a result of the melee, was taken to the City Hospital, where he also was found to be suffering from alcoholism. He was charged with felonious wounding, leaving the scene of an accident and resisting an officer.

Grams, who was known to his companions only as "Mike," was identified several hours later by his brother, Felix, of 1498 North Tenth street. He was employed as a driver for a commission firm.

Man Found Seriously Hurt, Believed to Have Been Hit By Auto.

Michael Regan, 65 years old, of 8216 Michigan avenue, a caretaker for the St. Columbian Catholic Church, at that address, was found by police officers lying unconscious in Broadway about 30 feet south of Davis street, at a week last night. He was taken to the Aikman Brothers Hospital, where he was found to have suffered a probable fracture of the skull, a fractured right knee and bruises, about the head and body. He was unable to tell how he received his injuries, but he is believed to have been knocked down by an automobile which sped away after the accident. His condition is serious.

Nine Hurt in Two Collisions. South Tenth street, a soda clerk, was driving a Cole touring car north in front of 2423 South Eighth street at 7:30 p. m. when the machine collided with the Ford touring car of Joseph Blacky, 47, of 2002 Victor street, which was being driven south in Eighteenth on the wrong side of the street. Birkenbach's mother, Mrs. William Birkenbach, who was riding with him, suffered injuries to the left thigh and left hand, and Blacky suffered bruises and abrasions of his hands and arms.

Seven persons suffered bruises and lacerations at 6 p. m. when a Ford touring car driven by Elmer McCarter, 30, of 4245A Swan avenue, collided with the automobile of Joseph Burger of 4447 Easton avenue, at Kingshighway and Wichita street. The accident occurred when McCarter, who was driving south in Kingshighway, attempted to turn east into Wichita.

In the car with McCarter were his wife, Gladys, 28; their daughter, Mary, 2; his brother, Arthur McCarter, of 6703 Glades avenue; Arthur's wife, May, 24, and son, Robert, 4. All were taken to Barnes Hospital for treatment and later were taken home.

Frederick Redding, 39 years old, of 4233 W. Cosens avenue, suffered a fractured skull and lacerations of the head and face at 8:40 p. m. when, in attempting to cross from the south to the north side of the street in front of 4232 Easton avenue, he was knocked down by an eastbound automobile driven by Frank Barry, of 1516A Burd avenue.

LOSES LIFE LEARNING TO FLY

Texas Doctor Fatally Burned in Crash; Aviator Hurt.

GAINESVILLE, Tex., July 12.—
Dr. Roy E. Hughes, 46 years old, was burned to death and James Cole, former Army aviator, perhaps fatally injured, when Hughes' airplane crashed near here late yesterday.

Cole was teaching Dr. Hughes to fly the recently purchased machine. Six minutes after the men had taken the air, persons watching saw a burst of smoke after which the plane fell. Cole either jumped or fell from the plane as it neared the earth and crawled from the ignited wreckage.

Fascists Plan to Delay Election.
ROME, July 12.—Roberto Far-inacci, Secretary of the Fascist party, declares there will be no Italian Parliamentary general election until 1933 and that the life of the present Chamber may even be prolonged beyond that date by Fascist legislation. Fascist newspapers approve the statement while the opposition press says the postponing of the general elections is an illegal continuation of Fascist control.

PLANS FOR PACIFIC
FLIGHT FACE UPSET

Change in Wind Directions
May Make It Impossible to Carry Out Navy Maneuvers.

Special of the Post-Dispatch.
SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 13.—A change in the direction of the prevailing winds on the Pacific Ocean may make it impossible to carry out the proposed naval flight from San Diego to Hawaii, tentatively set for Sept. 1.

Flight Commander John Rodgers said today that westerly winds have been prevailing on the Pacific for two weeks. This unusual behavior of the air currents is believed to be due to a radical change in the direction of the Japan current which is affecting the weather on the west coast of North and South America.

Just how important a fact the wind is in aerial navigation is evident from the declaration of Commander Rodgers that the air distance from San Diego to Hawaii is one-third longer against the wind.

"While we could continue this flight from Hawaii to Guam and the Philippines," said Commander Rodgers yesterday, "it will be quite impossible to fly back again.
There are places between here and Hawaii where a plane may point its nose toward the mainland and fly 60 miles an hour without moving over the ocean faster than five miles an hour. No, when we fly from Hawaii to America we will have to have much more powerful ships than are now available."

Hawaii is planning a two-day celebration to greet the naval Argonauts. A holiday will be proclaimed and the flyers decorated and greeted by the tribal songs of the natives.

Naval Lieutenant Ralph Davison was designated today as navigating officer for the flight.

Dwelling Bombed at Niagara Falls.
By the Associated Press.
NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 13.—An explosion, believed to have been caused by a dynamite bomb, early today wrecked a store and dwelling owned and occupied by Joa. La Tona, a supervisor from the Third Ward. Fire followed the explosion. All members of the La Tona family were away at the time.
La Tona recently announced his candidacy for re-nomination as supervisor. Police believe political enemies among the foreign-born community may have been responsible for the explosion. The damage was estimated at $20,000.

JAPANESE LABORERS EJECTED BY MOB

Workers at Oregon Lumber Camp Hauled Away in Autos and Trucks.

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, Ore., July 12.—Overcoming the resistance of armed guards of the Pacific Spruce Corporation's mill at Toledo, Ore., a mob of about 400 men, women and children rounded up the company's Japanese laborers yesterday, loaded them and their belongings into motor cars and trucks and carried them beyond the county line, leaving them to shift for themselves.

No weapons were used in the fighting with the guards, but fist fights were general and several of the mill force and townsmen were severely beaten.

Martin Guerner, Charles A. Buck and W. S. Colver, alleged leaders of the mob, were arrested by Sheriff Horstfall and a deputy and the mob dispersed. The names of at least 50 other participants were taken by the officers, it was said.

The trouble was the culmination of a disagreement of several weeks' standing between certain laboring groups and the company over the employment of Japanese labor at the company's sawmill. The march on the spruce mill followed a brief but fiery mass meeting in the streets at which agitators harangued the crowd. The mob was led by a man waving an American flag. None of the Japanese was injured.

DESTROYERS END LONG CRUISE

Two U. S. Vessels Were in Foreign Waters Five Years.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Back home after a cruise of five years in foreign waters, the destroyers Borie and John D. Edwards anchored in the Hudson today.

They were in the Black Sea during the young Turk uprising in Turkey. They rendered aid to earthquake victims at Yokohama. For a year and a half they have been at Hongkong and Shanghai. Anti-foreign demonstrations started before their departure. Naval regulations permits vessels bound for the home port after two years or more of foreign service to fly one foot of silken material for each man aboard. The pennants of the Borie and John D. Edwards were so long it was necessary to use balloons in floating them. Each ship has a crew of 125. Banners are to be cut into equal bits for the men.

FUNDING OF ALL DEBTS BY FALL, OBJECTIVE OF U. S.

Coolidge Hopes to Present Settlement of Chief Outstanding Loans to Congress in December.

THERE WILL BE NO CUT IN PRINCIPAL

Reduction in Interest an Inducement; Debtor Nations Realize Value to Them of Payment.

By DAVID LAWRENCE, Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1923.)

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 13.—President Coolidge hopes to be able to present to the next session of Congress which meets in December, a settlement of all outstanding debts owed the United States by the principal allied countries.

This is the objective toward which American diplomacy is working now that Secretary of State Kellogg has had a long conference on the subject with the chief executives of Belgium, then France and then Italy, with settlements about the same time from Czechoslovakia, Lithuania and some of the other countries.

Two outstanding ideas now have been conveyed to the European debtors as the irreducible minimum of American terms:

First, there will be no reduction in the principal. The sacredness of international obligation, indeed, the sacredness of contracts, is insisted in a fulfillment by the allies of the pledge they made to repay the United States when the loans were borrowed.

Second, a reduction in the amounts of interest due and the interest rate is the only flexibility which the United States can possibly offer as an answer to the plea of the allies that "ability to pay" should be taken into consideration in their creditor, the United States.

Time for jockeying, however, over. Delay will not get better results. All the interested governments now know that. They also have been told plainly that America, at once their chances of being given favorable consideration on interest reduction will be better than if they delay.

Thus every effort is being used to persuade the foreign governments that they had best make arrangements between now and the next session of Congress. It is pointed out that Congress will be in a better mood to approve debt agreements if they are presented in a group than if each is taken up singly and put great emphasis on terms is sought.

There is also a measure of good will involved in the willingness of the debtor countries to meet the American viewpoint of prompt settlement. The countries which owe money now will not regret it.

From a political viewpoint, the issue is more favorable than the next session of Congress. Mr. Coolidge has control of the situation now but there is no telling what might be the case if party lines should later be drawn and a debt settlement made by the executive rejected by a Congress controlled by another political party.

Fundamental Established. The President is known to have shared to Secretary Kellogg while his satisfaction that negotiations were proceeding rapidly. Mr. Kellogg is represented as having emphasized the need for uninterrupted attention to the problem. The outlook therefore is that Secretary Kellogg will not get much of vacation this summer but will stay on the job at Washington and keep in constant touch with the diplomatic situation in the hope of moving the debt negotiations closer and closer to a conclusion.

The issue already made warrants the hope that the Belgian agreement will be ready within another six months and that the French commission coming to the United States will quickly reach an agreement. Indeed, the fundamentals are already more or less definitely established and there is no serious reason for much parrying.

The biggest factor, however, of all is the plain talk that has been conveyed positively to the foreign governments that America will not extend credits in this country any other nations debt settlements are made. While this may sound harsh, it is considered by American officials to be sound economic policy even from the viewpoint of foreign governments. France, for instance, is paying a high interest for her internal loans, much more in fact than she has ever paid in her history. If she should have debts to the United States, credit would promptly rise and that the integrity of that nation and her sovereignty shall not be interfered with by the powers.

American Position Clarified.
Coming at a time when there is talk both of independent action in China by Great Britain and of

JOSEPH PULITZER

April 10, 1907.

A Memorial to Walt Whitman.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

JUDGING from the unanimity of opinion expressed in a wide newspaper discussion of the subject, the Authors' Club believes that there is a decided feeling that the country and especially the City of New York, has been tardy in undertaking to preserve the memory of Walt Whitman, who is today generally ranked among the foremost poets not only of New York, but of the nation. The metropolitan press has for some years been willing to urge the erection of a suitable memorial and has only waited for the initiative to be taken by some appropriate and responsible organization. Under the circumstances the Authors' Club, a national institution located in the City of New York, feels that it cannot do less than to sponsor a movement for this purpose.

It has, accordingly, appointed a committee to solicit public contributions to the amount of $40,000 for the erection of a statue or other memorial to be executed by the best artist that can be had and to be placed in some public park where the people of the city and the visitor to the city can behold the bodily form of the poet-patriot who so passionately sang of New York and of America.

The Authors' Club thanks the press for its wholehearted support and believes that the admirers of Whitman everywhere will be found equally generous in their financial assistance. The Executive Committee welcomes the co-operation of schools and other appropriate organizations, as well as suggestions concerning the site and type of memorial to be selected. Checks may be made payable, and suggestions addressed, to The Authors' Club, Whitman Memorial Committee, 24 Nassau street, New York City.

Revenue from Park Permits.

WHAT use is to be made of the funds derived from permits to play golf and tennis in city parks? Are these funds to be segregated and spent to maintain the golf and tennis grounds, or are they to go into the general revenue or some other fund to furnish jobs for political hangers?

The principle of charging for such permissions is correct. In Los Angeles a charge of $1 per 15 holes per season in four months is made on the grass courses, 50 cents on the desert course. Revenue from permits is segregated and used to maintain and to extend the courses. Los Angeles must sprinkle lawns and greens to get grass. It proposes to continue present high charges until it has at least 15 holes, two 18 and one 9-hole, grass courses, in operation. This I submit is the proper method to adopt. I suggest its employment in St. Louis.

Plans to irrigate fairways, as well as putting greens, should be made in St. Louis. When the city can afford to maintain the Triple A Course, it should be taken over. GOLFERS

"Good Us" Is Correct: Partly.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

FRIEND "Good Us" is right in his letter when he explains that a $1500 balance which is as active as he states is more costly to handle than his $1000 with but few transactions.

The facts in the case are that the bank will lose money on both; but more on a $1500 active account than on a $1000 completely inactive account. Assuming that the banker can lend or invest every dollar every day of the year (which is impossible) his gross (not net) profit is about 8c per week, per $100. His net profit is the difference between the 8c and whatever the overhead is. Overhead consists of salaries, rent, light, heat, etc., taxes and other miscellaneous items.

How much the net profit is depends upon the activity of the account. If no checks are drawn nor deposits made, the banker can make approximately 5c a week, less fixed overhead, which isn't a large profit. But if any changes on the account are made, his profit is eliminated quickly. He is a poor banker who doesn't make a fair profit.

Almost all banks offer to pay interest on savings, mainly because overhead expense is very small.

But if one wants the benefit of a checking account, he certainly should be willing to do one of two things—carry an average balance of $200 or more, or pay a reasonable fee for the service which he demands.

Prevention of Traffic Accidents.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

FOR prevention of accidents, my suggestion is for your city to pass a law prohibiting jay-walking in any part of the city limits. If blocks are unusually long, provide public walkways across streets. Pass a law compelling all vehicles to slow down to a speed of 15 miles per hour while crossing public walkways. By placing a speed of 10 miles per hour, we in the railroad world know this has the effect of being able to stop within a prescribed number of feet from a given signal or object. That is, in a way, the meaning of speed limit to railroad men engaged in transportation.

I have often thought these two laws, if properly enforced, would have a tendency to reduce the accidents due to motor travel. E. M.

THE BIGOTRY OF BRYAN.

In his long career of personal exploitation William Jennings Bryan has compounded many panaceas and sponsored many vagaries, but he always has enjoyed a reputation for sincerity. His change of front in the Dayton case jeopardizes that one virtue.

As explained in the news, the defense planned to call eminent scientists to testify whether the theory of evolution conflicted with the Bible story of creation. At first Mr. Bryan exultantly welcomed the proposal. Now he opposes it. He defends his reversal in an astonishing statement in which he says:

If the people of Tennessee have a right to pass laws for the protection of the religion of their children they have a right to determine for themselves what they consider injurious and dangerous to their children. No specialists from the outside are required to inform the parents of Tennessee as to what is harmful. . . . If a law like this were passed in New York and witnesses were called from Tennessee to assure the people of New York that they were unduly alarmed and that there was nothing to fear, their testimony would be objected to as offensive as well as improper.

If that statement is accepted as sincere, Mr. Bryan mentally must be marked down pretty close to zero. The rational inference is that the statement is deliberate demagoguery. Obviously it is an appeal to the prejudice of the people of Tennessee; an attempt to arouse their hostility to those superior outsiders. It pictures these sincere scholars as officious busybodies whose presence is "offensive," a violation of courtesy, and, impliedly, an insult to be resented.

Mr. Darrow describes Mr. Bryan's change of front as an "effort to run away from the facts." It is far worse than that. It is the effort of a legal trickster who is willing to win his suit, not on its merits, but by the suppression of any testimony that may be adverse to his side. With the wisdom or justice of the law in question, with the truth of the point at issue, Mr. Bryan apparently is not concerned. This law is his handiwork and must be upheld. He wants no light let in on his own mind, nor on the minds of the people of Tennessee.

These scientists whom Mr. Bryan would exclude from Tennessee are not "outsiders." In the derogatory sense Mr. Bryan uses the word. As scholars, in which capacity they would appear as witnesses, they are not citizens of New York, or any other state, or any nation. They are citizens of the world. As scholars they are qualified to speak with authority on one of the points at issue, namely, whether or not the theory of evolution contradicts the Bible. They are particularly qualified to say whether or not modern biology can be taught in the schools without endangering the pupils' religion or faith. In these matters the jurors selected to try the case are admittedly ignorant. In fairness to themselves, in fairness to the defendant, and especially in fairness to the children of Tennessee, the jurors ought to have the best information obtainable.

Mr. Bryan says no. Away with scientists! Away with these outsiders from New York! Away with the Constitution of Tennessee! Away with the Constitution of the United States! Away with any authority that presumes to question the righteousness of this statute of the right of the people of Tennessee, when counseled by Mr. Bryan, to pass any law they choose to pass in the name of religion.

Truth, justice, scholarship, constitutional limitations—they must all be thrust aside. The bigotry of Bryan must prevail.

MORE AMERICAN MADNESS.

It is a rare day which fails to bring forth its striking and often tragic instance of American madness. Raymond Shipp of Raymondville, Mo., and Jack Lyons, his brother-in-law, are nursing wounds caused by a steel-jacketed bullet because an embattled farmer of Texas County suspected them of being bootleggers.

Shipp and Lyons were driving home from a fishing trip when the farmer saw them give a man a lift and drop him off shortly afterward. Such an incident to the farmer's mind, meant only that he had boarded the car to get a drink. Whereupon the farmer notified the local gendarmes, who took out after the innocent and unsuspecting Shipp and Lyons. Unconsciously a bullet was fired at their car, presumably to explode a tire, but which instead wounded Lyons seriously and cut through Shipp's hand.

Shipp is a well-known farmer and lumberman. Lyons was his guest from Cleveland, O. They had had nothing to drink. No liquor was in the car. No call to halt was heard. Yet the frenzied law enforcers, reflecting the farmer's lunatic passion on the liquor question, pumped lead into them.

Not only was every instinct of law and order violated by the incident, but every canon of decency and fair play that exists between men. But such is not only Texas County justice, but a type of justice which is prevalent throughout the country. Shoot first, investigate afterward, is the watchword of those whose job it is to suppress such awful crimes as carrying or drinking liquor.

RITCHIE AND STATES RIGHTS.

In a recent New York speech Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of the Maryland Free State pleaded eloquently for "a Federal Government of fewer laws, of less interference with guaranteed liberties, which respects the balance our fathers struck between governmental power and individual freedom." Ritchie thus continued a campaign which has brought him into national notice as an outstanding champion of states' rights and made him a factor to be reckoned with in the next contest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The rebirth of popular and official interest in the respective rights of the states and the national Government is an excellent sign. There is unmistakable evidence that the country is becoming convinced of the need of decentralization of governmental functions. President Coolidge preached the reform with certain vitriolic reservations, however—in his Memorial Day speech, and Secretary of Commerce Hoover, in a recent appeal for reorganization of the departments at Washington, declared that the time had come for the Federal Government to stop usurping powers that rightfully belong to the states.

All this is of happy augury. It shows there has been a halt in our descent into what some observers, with well-grounded pessimism, have described as a condition of political decadence. Indeed, the glimmer of hopeful light that has become discernible among the water of ill omen may develop into a flame that will cleanse the whole body politic. With local self-government restored, there will certainly be less difference on the part of the voter to his civic obligations, and it seems reasonable to believe that the power of mischievous organized minorities, the source of much of the legalized prying and snooping of today, will be diminished.

When that blessed day arrives no small share of the credit will have to be given to the missionary work that is now being done by the Governor of Maryland.

THE NEWS OF THE DAY.

The greatest piece of news in today's newspapers is contained in a dispatch from London, stating that the British National Institute of Medical Research has discovered and isolated the organism which causes cancer. The discovery of a cure for this dread disease has engaged the attention and labor of the best minds and the best organizations devoted to medical science.

There is no pretense that the British National Institute has discovered a cure for cancer. But the first essential step on the road to cure is to find the cause. The cure will follow.

The men who are credited with the chief responsibility for this good work are Dr. J. E. Barnard, Dr. W. E. Gye and Dr. G. Russell, who are counted among the leaders of medical science in Great Britain.

The news from London will delight scientists the world over and presages an inestimable boon for mankind. It is a victory in the first battle with one of the deadliest enemies of mankind.

THE CHINESE POLICY.

The American Chamber of Commerce at Hankow, disturbed and annoyed by Senator Borah's recent plea for Chinese nationalism, will be pacified and pleased by the real policy of the United States toward China as outlined by Secretary Kellogg after a week-end conference with the President. All other American business interests in China and all holders of Chinese bonds will likewise be content.

China must fulfill its treaty obligations, is the terse idea of the administration, and it must also protect the lives of foreigners. So far, good, but is nothing to be said for the grievances of the Chinese? If there was any fear that the administration would have a sympathetic word for a people whose pecks wear a half-dozen foreign yokes that fear is now dispelled. Chinese nationalistic ambitions will get no encouragement from Washington.

Never was dollar diplomacy more firmly entrenched in Washington than it is at the present time. Except for Mr. Coolidge's half-hearted espousal of the World Court, a position he inherited from President Harding, the foreign policy of the United States is of one piece—the protection of the American invested and loaned dollar.

Secretary Kellogg's Mexican pronouncement expressed this policy in almost brutal terms. The Chinese statement, while less blunt, is none the less a warning to the Chinese that nationalistic monkey-shines and demonstrations against foreign oppression must not be carried too far.

This is a far cry from John Hay's open door; from our beneficent umpireship of the Boxer troubles; from Senator Borah's liberal championship of Chinese rights. It has a curtness which the Chinese will not understand, coming as it does from her hitherto staunch and constant friend among the Powers of the world.

As between a mad dog running amuck and the Texas County official who shot two men suspected of bootlegging, the difference seems to be that the dog's intelligence is destroyed by disease while the lawless official never had any intelligence to speak of.

MISSOURI'S NEW GOOD ROADS.

Describing the fine highways which Missouri has built through the rare beauties of its Ozark Mountain region, a Post-Dispatch writer said in Sunday's Automobile Section: "At the Wayne County line there is a mile of loose gravel, beyond which a new road is being cut through, necessitating a detour. This stretch is even wilder than the rest, going into a deep valley and climbing over one 'young' mountain. The road is only passable. . . . continuing for about 20 miles before the broad, good gravel is resumed. Greenville, seat of Wayne County, is next. Eventually this section will have a first-class highway. Wayne County was Gov. Baker's boyhood balliwick."

When Gov. Baker was a barefoot country boy, and later, when he was attaining manhood, Wayne County's Ozark fastnesses had no broad highways and no prospect of them. Most of its trails were rocky or muddy, and rough at all times; at least they were not fit for year-round travel, nor were they inviting when the automobile came along. But now Missouri's voters and lawmakers have seen the light of good roads, and the State Highway Commission, comprising business men of high standing, has put through a program of real highways, in spite of great obstacles. And now Samuel Aaron Baker, Governor of Missouri, wants to displace these men who have put his boyhood balliwick and the 113 other counties in touch with each other and the world in general, so that he may provide jobs for political friends.

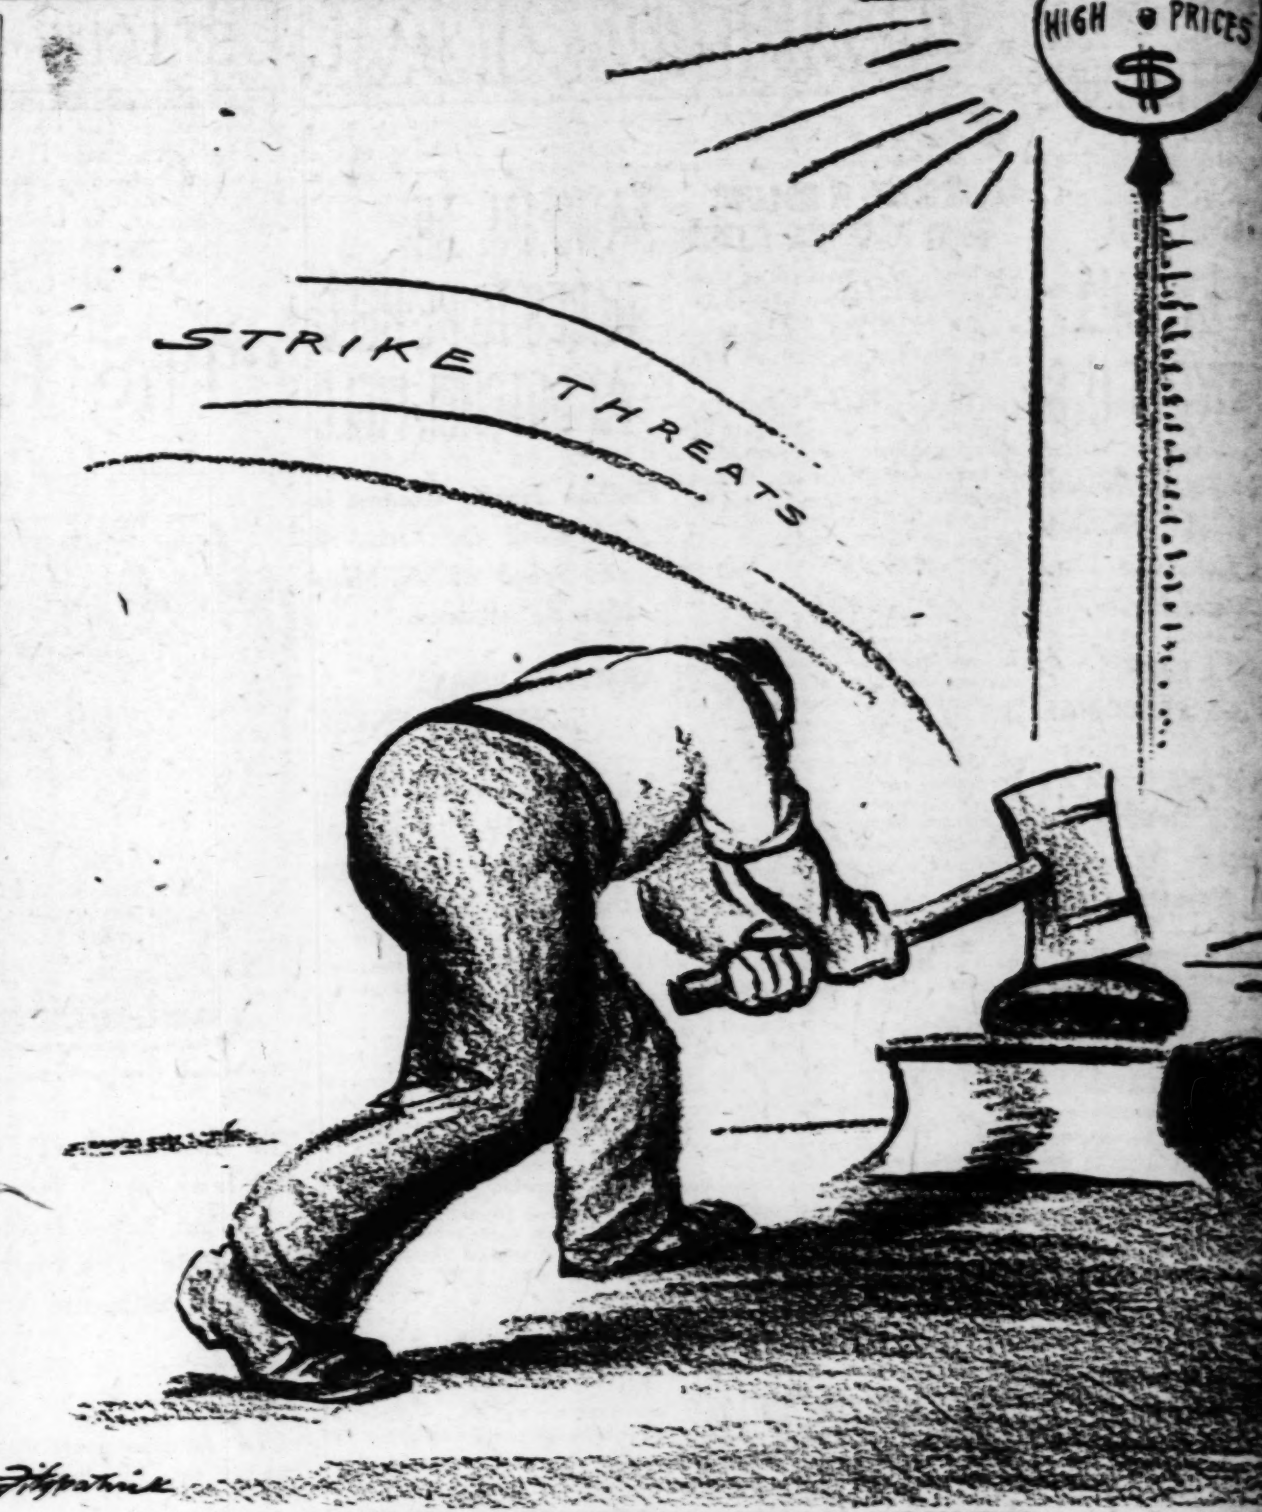

The Highway Commissioners are to be congratulated on the work they have done in lifting Missouri out of the mud and encouraged in their determination to finish the job. The Governor should not imperil their positions. Already, among other accomplishments, to revert to the article previously referred to: "Missouri's Ozark Mountains at last have become an accessible playground for the people. Fine highways have been opened through remote sections of these hauntingly glorious hills."

WHITE PETTICOATS.

A man in Los Angeles, desiring to dispose of his half-million dollar estate, wrote his will on the hem of a white petticoat. Bequests of $10,000 each were left to the two nurses who attended him in his last illness.

This only shows how slowly fashions travel westward from Paris. Confidential information leads to the belief that the starched white petticoats worn east of the Mississippi River this summer are only one-tenth of one per cent, in volume, of those worn in the summer of 1915. The percentage is the same as that of benzene of soda used in tomato ketchup as a preservative. Statisticians are sure that if the entire wardrobe of the normal young woman met on the streets were made into one piece and ironed out flat it would be impossible to write upon it the Constitution of the United States in a Spencerian hand.

A plausible explanation of the affair in Los Angeles is that modern fashions do prevail there, but that the clever citizens have found something to do with castoff petticoats.

BALLADE OF JULY WEATHER.

All poetry, I vow, is rot:
At last the face of truth I seek:
I feel this way because it's hot,
Mais ou sont les neiges d'antan?
Friend Francis wrote the line I quote:
About some dame he then help'd fret:
Now let me add my quavering note,
Where are the snows of yesteryear?

That line he could not pen in spring,
To tell the truth, no poet can:
It takes a sizzling day to sing,
Mais ou sont les neiges d'antan?
In autumn? No! Why speak of snow
When all the leaves are brown and sere?
When summer comes, we all would know,
Where are the snows of yesteryear?

It seems a shame to give away
A secret on a fellow man,
Yet with Villon, I too, must pray,
Mais ou sont les neiges d'antan?
I mind that Paris, too, gets warm
And that without referring to the rhyme,
When I'm too hot, the cold could charm:
Where are the snows of yesteryear?

I used to think those lines were penned
Because he thought of life's short span,
But in July I comprehend
Mais ou sont les neiges d'antan?
His thoughts were far from ladies' fair,
From wine and song, from joy and cheer,
He could not brook the sun's hot glare:
Where are the snows of yesteryear?

As natural, and with a fan,
Mais ou sont les neiges d'antan?
I wish I had a scum of beer,
Where are the snows of yesteryear?

JOS. D. HEADLE.

Perhaps the two boys from the Missouri School of Mines who shot up Butter the other day had in mind the decay of Missouri's prestige in the West since Kit Carson busted the Blackfoot. Jim Bridger ravaged the Great Salt Lake and Calamity Jane made an every-day movie of the town of Deadwood. Those were great Missourians, and great was the fame of Missouri when their sons and daughters were of that sort. We knew we were getting a little anemic, but we were hardly prepared for the spectacle of the old Missouri redivivus which has just landed those two ebullient youths in the Montana prison. They must have resented our decay bitterly.

Ulysses was sitting in the shade of a cloud boasting of hot weather he had seen. "Where were you?" asked a quiet little soul on the left.

"I went through hell," said Ulysses. "I imagine that is why you are not as shriveled as I am. I spent a summer in St. Louis, Mo." said the little soul.

Dayton, Tenn.—Among the queer freaks of nature brought into Dayton for the evolution exhibit is what the exhibitor calls a catrat. This creature, which comes from the mountains of Kentucky, is half cat and half rat. It is cat in front and rat behind. Those were great Missourians, and great was the fame of Missouri when their sons and daughters were of that sort. We knew we were getting a little anemic, but we were hardly prepared for the spectacle of the old Missouri redivivus which has just landed those two ebullient youths in the Montana prison. They must have resented our decay bitterly.

The only effect of the President's drive on the run fleet will be to add swampscotch up about $2 a case.

RINGSIDE BULLETINS FROM THE BIG FIGHT.

By Our Own Correspondent.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 13, 1925.

The big fight between God and the Devil has drawn newspaper correspondents from all over the world.

As everyone knows, the Devil's representative is George Bernard Shaw of London, whose organ is the Associated Press, and that God's representative is William J. Bryan, whose organ is the Bible.

Their representatives are a number of lawyers, who will argue whether a certain alleged educator should be burned at the stake for questioning God or exalted to godhood for denying Him and asserting the Devil.

Shaw for once looks serious, angry. Bryan is also serious and angry. Only the lawyers are not serious nor angry. The Judge who is refereeing the bout is also suave and sweet. He permitted a minister to appear in the arena and ask God's blessing, on the fight without referring to the rhyme. This is clearly reversible error, and Clarence Darrow, in the Devil's corner, immediately saved his exceptions.

There is a large crowd here, who look like Bible readers. I find no newspaper readers here at all, merely newspaper writers, who generally read better things than they write. This would seem to be an advantage for God's side in the battle, but it must be recalled that God's personal organ, the Bible, while its circulation is enormous, the largest in the world, has fewer readers probably at this writing than even this paper.

Joe and Asbestos are here and are betting on Bryan on the theory that Clarence Darrow is in the Devil's corner and the jury is composed of the people, who only know that Clarence defended Loch and Leopold. Nearly all the jurymen have children of their own.

It is rumored in case Bryan wins, the Bible will add a classified advertising section in the back of the book in the manner of the telephone directory, which would tend to restore religion to its pristine power through making it profitable.

In case the Devil should knock God into a "cooked hat," the presses will have to get busy turning out editions of "Thus Spake Zarathustra," which doubtless accounts for the fact that Haldeman-Julius, the publisher of five-cent books, is here looking over the ground.

In case of a hanged jury, civil war will result between the legions of God and the legions of the Devil. If God wins this bloody war, He remains God, but if He loses He becomes Devil and the Devil becomes God. It will be a war in which none on either side can escape the draft, regardless of age or infirmity.

The thing to do is to remain neutral until drafted by one side or the other and then desert and go over to the other side for protection. It will be a bad war to be caught on either side of or in the middle between.

Someone who has been going over the Lincoln Memorial critically says the statue would be much more artistic if the effect of Lincoln, which is marble, were solid gold. Despite the huge majority for Coolidge last November, we doubt if there is any disposition to make anything in Washington of solid gold while the Republicans are down there.

A Philadelphia, who has mastered the mathematics of Revelations finds here much more spacious than anything we have known. Each angel, he says, has a "five-room house with 10-foot ceilings. We suspect that the house they will put him in will be bigger than that.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to represent what the latest comment of leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

REFORMING JOURNALISM.

H. L. MENCKEN in the American Journal for July.

I HAVE read during the past year a number of proposed codes of journalism, and many of them so heavy with dark words that going through them has made me feel that I had been through a mill. In all of them I have found the plain implication that journalism is to be spattered with bolts, and that they are to be in need of prompt and radical action. I have no great confidence in these new codes of ethics. They are themselves furiously with abuses which are not peculiar to journalism, but run through the whole of American life, and they are wholly journalistic and could be made quickly and without the slightest harm to the public interest.

I do not argue here, as so many do, that only demonstrable facts are the truth. There are times and occasions when what is almost as important as the truth is the newspaper's duty to its readers. It is to tell them not only what has happened, but also what is reported, what is ended, what is merely said. What I am saying is simply that such quasi-news, such as baked and still dubious news, should be printed for exactly what it is—news. It ought to be clearly differentiated from the news of other sections of the paper. That differentiation is made as a matter of course by most of the great newspapers of any dignity, and they print a dispatch from the Russian Revolution which they indicate its source, and so forth. I think it is a cynical and a little bit also what is reported, what is ended, what is merely said. Ex-Governor Gardner to Present Flag to De Molay at Missouri Theater Tonight.

The ten big features of "Folies Week" at the Missouri Theater this week has been increased to 11 big features for tonight only by the addition of the De Molay Band, St. Louis Chapter, whose 40 members will give a four-hour concert between 8 and 9 o'clock...

Former Governor Frederick D. Gardner will present the flag for the Post-Dispatch and acceptance will be made by Walter C. Ploeser, Master Councilor. Former Postmaster Colin M. Selph will preside at the ceremony. The band program, to be given under the direction of Clarence A. Zeiger, follows:

1. Bridal Rose Overture—Lavallo.

2. Idle Fancy (Serenade)—Bennett.

3. Empty Room Overture—Hayes.

4. On the Square (March)—Pall.

New Films

By NIE. PAUL ARMSTRONG'S old crook melodrama, "The Heart of a Thief," has been turned into a snappy, fast moving farce for the movies, and under the new name of "Paths to Paradise," serves as a vehicle for Raymond Griffith and Betty Compton at the Missouri. If you like Griffith, and a great many picture fans do, and don't care how improbable a story is just so it is funny, you will enjoy "Paths to Paradise."

Unhand Me, Villain. BLANCHE SWEET, who is starring her remarkable come-back on the screen, is the star of "The Sporting Venus" at Loew's State. Law Cody also in the cast, and you know what that means—for six or seven reels Blanche has the time of her life escaping from his clutches, and if Ronald Colman doesn't know what might have happened to the lady, Ronald is a Scotchman, as you can tell by his kilts, and being Scotch he is saving, and when the time comes to lift the mortgage on the old family castle of the Sweets he's right there with the silver. The usual movie wedding winds up the picture, which is quite entertaining.

Here's a Real One. KISS ME AGAIN, at the Grand Central. Lyric Sky-dome, comes pretty close to being the best "movie offering of the summer. It is written about the eternal triangle, but in a light comedy vein, and proves to be really enjoyable. Ernst Lubitsch, the German director, who has not lived up to his old country reputation since coming to America and whose best work has always been done with tragedies, made this surprising little play, and he has handled the comedy situations very cleverly. The cast, including Marie Prevost, Clara Bow, Monte Blue and Willard Lewis, is excellent.

Beware of Actresses. COMING into sudden wealth is said to be reasonably dangerous. We have never tried it, but found out everything that is likely to happen to one who gets rich quickly in "Just a Woman" at the Capitol and the Kings. You will meet an actress who will try and get a share of your new fortune and she won't stop at compromising your wife, who stays at home and cries herself to sleep over the way property has gone to your head. But that's not all. Percy Marmont will hang around and try and straighten things out, and Percy, as we have had occasion to remark before, is the champion grief absorber of the screen. In order to get rid of Percy you'd give up most anything, and so it is in "Just a Woman," everybody goes back home and the wicked actress gets her just deserts, as they always do in the movies.

Raffles Is Back. "RAFFLES" one of the first of the detective-mystery dramas of the stage, has found its way on to the screen. We seem to recall that the play had been made into a picture once before, but at all events the present version, which is at the Rivoli, sticks closely to the spoken melodrama and is rather old-fashioned and still in its joints. House Peters is seen as the amateur crackman.

Tellegen Fumbles Things. LOU TELLEGEN, so the gossip says, knows a lot about love. Certainly he knows more than he was permitted to show and at the same time keep alive a plot for in "After Business Hours," at the Delmonte this week. He acceptably plays the role of a none too intelligent husband, whose neglect starts his wife playing cards, lying and finally being put into the power of blackmailers. Tellegen is forced to whip a money lender or so, a chauffeur and some one else to win her back, which, of course, he does. Elaine Hammerstein is the wife. There is a comedy and a stage number.

Alton L. Berts Dies in West. Word of the death at Glendale, Cal., last Tuesday, of Alton L. Berts, 53 years old, son of Philmon Berts, general secretary of the St. Louis Y. M. C. A. for about 16 years, has been received here by Y. M. C. A. officials. Death was caused by a sinus trouble with which he had been troubled for about 10 years. During the World War Young Berts was general supervisor of the Y. M. C. A. huts located at Jefferson Barracks, Washington University and other places in the city. His father resided in 1923 and went to California.

Don't Be Mised

No "many purpose" soap can accomplish Palmolive results. Palmolive is made for just one purpose... to foster good complexions

MILLIONS of women know that Palmolive has brought them new beauty, new charm. In France, the home of cosmetics, Palmolive Soap is one of the two largest selling toilet soaps. French women find it their ideal of a soap. French soaps are being supplanted by Palmolive.

The reason is this: Palmolive is a unique creation, based on 60 years of soap study. It is a scientific soap, made for ONE thing only. To foster good complexions.

In old days, women were told "use no soap on your faces." Soaps were too harsh. Then came Palmolive, a soap made of rare cosmetic oils... olive and palm oils, famous since the days of Cleopatra as beautifiers of the skin. And combined in secret blend. A soap to be used freely, lavishly on the skin.

Women tried it. And were amazed. Palmolive became the leading toilet soap of the world. It is made in five countries to supply the universal demand. It has brought to millions a beauty no soap had ever brought before.

Don't expect Palmolive results from ordinary soaps. Don't expect them from medicated soaps. Even genuine castile failed in bringing them. Certainly no ordinary soap can. Protect your skin's beauty by using a soap made for that purpose alone.

Palmolive is not intended for laundry work, or for household cleansing. To make it good for those things, its cosmetic qualities would need be much reduced. And good complexions are too precious to be endangered thus.

There are soaps at 25 cents and over that approach Palmolive in complexion results. We know of two. But Palmolive sells at 10 cents... no more than ordinary soaps. Enormous production brings you this modest cost.

The fact that one woman in every two today has a clear, fresh skin proves Palmolive results. Would you go back to ordinary soaps and perhaps imperil yours?

Wash, cleanse, launder with any soap you wish. But when beauty is at stake, take care: Use Palmolive, a soap you know is safe to use. It is nature's formula to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion."

FRENCH WOMEN Largely Vote "No" on French Soaps

In France, women smile at the age-old beauty bubble of "French soaps." Palmolive is today one of the two greatest selling toilet soaps in France. Parisian beauties are glad to pay almost twice as much for a cake of Palmolive as American women pay. And, in many cases, three times as much as for their own "French" soaps. Remember this when tempted by costly French soaps, or by "French" claims for soaps.

Note carefully the name and wrapper. Palmolive is never sold unwrapped.

POLICE AGAIN RAID THE DANDRIDGE HOME

14 Arrested, Brew Seized, at Scene of Arrests in Hogan-Hammett Killing.

The Dandridge home at 3023 Clarence place, scene of the arrest of three men later charged by a Coroner's jury as responsible for the murder of Patrolman John H. Grogan and Harvey Hammett, was raided again early yesterday morning by the police.

Mrs. Dorothy Dandridge, 29 years old; three other women, a 16-year-old girl and nine men and youths were arrested and a small quantity of Home brew was seized. All of the prisoners were held suspected of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The 16-year-old girl told the police that beer was served to her by Mrs. Dandridge.

In a raid on the same house July 6, policemen arrested Maurice O'Flaherty, James Widmer and Leo Sprout, who were later implicated by O'Flaherty in the killing of Grogan and Hammett in a hold-up at 1531 Washington avenue on July 3. The three, with Frank Bird and Medford Woods, were ordered held at the Coroner's inquest.

Total of 307 Arrests.
The police made 307 arrests over the week-end, including 28 in 22 saloon raids. A raid on a crane game resulted in the arrest of 10 negro participants. Five men in a machine bearing an Indiana license were arrested on the Free Bridge after policemen who questioned them found a total of $823 in their pockets and in the door pockets of the automobile. They were held for investigation.

Helen Asher, 12 years old, was awakened in her bedroom at 2223 Rutger street early yesterday by a negro burglar, who choked her when she began to scream. When her father, Henry Asher, rushed into the room, the negro jumped from the ground-floor window and escaped.

Irvin Denzky, 15-year-old messenger for the Knapp drug store at 4977 Delmar boulevard, was robbed of $9 at 8:15 p. m. yesterday by a man who had made minor purchases over the phone and ordered them delivered to a Delmar boulevard address, along with change for $10. He met the boy on the porch there and robbed him. Residents at that address said they had not called the store.

Robbed on Road in County.
Fred Ripper of 201 Avenue "H," St. Louis County, was robbed of $16 and his Ford auto by two men at Weber and Union roads at 11:15 p. m. yesterday. The automobile was recovered a short time later on Lemay Ferry road.

Two men held up George M. Hunt, manager of the Puritan filling station at Union and Delmar boulevards, at 2:10 a. m. today, and escaped with $50 from the cash drawer.

John H. Barber was robbed of $3 by two men who held him up a short distance from his home at 2523 Semple avenue at 1 a. m.

NAMED GUARDIAN OF CHILD

HE DISGUISED SELF TO KIDNAP
Otto F. Grimm, Theatrical Costumer, Is Adjudged of Sound Mind by Court.

Otto F. Grimm, a theatrical costumer at 922 Pine street, today was appointed by Probate Judge Holtcamp as guardian of his foster daughter, Virginia, 8 years old, replacing Miss Florence Treffert of 4523 Tennessee avenue, who has had custody of the child as guardian.

Testimony was heard last week by Judge Holtcamp, following a sanity hearing, in which Grimm was adjudged of sound mind.

Miss Treffert was a sister of Grimm's wife, who died in February, 1922. After his wife's death Grimm went to live at the home of Miss Treffert and her mother, Mrs. Caroline Treffert. He was remarried last January, after which Miss Treffert succeeded in having herself appointed as the child's guardian. Last April Grimm disguised himself with a red wig and false whiskers and took the child away from the Treffert home. He returned the child, however, when he was arrested on a kidnapping charge.

BROTHERS, SAID TO HAVE

BEEN BURGLARS, ARE SHOT
Men Wounded by Chief of Police at Monmouth, Ill. When They Ignore Command to Halt.

By the Associated Press.
PEORIA, Ill., July 12.—Two men, said to have been burglars, were shot, one probably fatally, by the Chief of Police of Monmouth when they failed to obey his command to halt at midnight Saturday, according to word from Monmouth.

The men gave their names as Jack Dennison of Monmouth and Henry Dennison, his brother, of Cave City, Ky. The former is not expected to live.

The Chief was called to the southern part of the city by a report that two men were seen prowling in the rear of buildings. When he saw the men he commanded them to halt, but they ran. He then opened fire.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Ranking Stars of U. S.
In Action at Triple A; Tilden to Arrive Today

grass, No. 6 in America, Meets Allan Key of Eastland, Texas, While Norton Opposes Charles McMillan of St. Louis.

By Arthur Schneff.

Two players conceded an excellent chance to reach the semifinals of the National clay court tennis championship, now in progress on Triple A Club courts, will swing into action in feature matches this afternoon, the third day of competition.

Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles, 14 in the United States ranking, and runner-up to Cham- Tilden in the clay court tour- nament last year, will meet Allen Key of Eastland, Tex., at 3 o'clock. The other outstanding star who is today and who carries St. Louis, while Norton opposes Charles McMillan, another champion of Europe and former cham- pion of the United States doubles title with Tilden. Norton, who ranks 14 nationally for 1924, will meet Charles McMillan, another champion of the United States doubles title, at 3 o'clock. Norton, who last week, paired with Joseph Smith, won the doubles and yes- terday won the singles champion- ship in the State tournament at Kan- sas City, is at the top of his game and is regarded as one of the few capable of giving the defending champion serious competition.

Tilden Plays Tomorrow.

Champion Tilden, four-time win- ner of the clay court title and gen- erally regarded as the greatest player of all time, will make his appearance in the tournament to- morrow. Tilden, accompanied by his doubles partner, "Sandy" Lane, and the group of stars, who will accompany the "master," ar- rive in St. Louis late this after- noon.

The two most interesting match- ings yesterday's program were be- lieved to be the greatest of the tour- nament. Joe Smith, left-hand player from Sol- dador School, who is under District champion, won a well earned vic- tory over Joseph Werner, former champion and present State champion with Norton. The wins were 6-4, 2-6, 6-3. Werner was evidently tired after his week of hard play at Kan- sas City last week. Smith, except for a sudden spell of carelessness at the beginning of the second set, was at the top of his game.

Clark Smith, the 15-year-old son, who is one of Brian Norton's proteges, won a gruelling match from Herb Weinstein, for- mer intercollegiate champion, by scores of 6-5, 6-7, 12-10. Weinstein overcame appar- ently insurmountable leads to even the match. Smith had Wein- stock 1-1 in games and 40-15 in the second set, but Weinstein won straight games to take the set. Smith and Weinstein were tied at 1-1 in games and 40-15 in the second set, but Weinstein won straight games to take the set. Pro Football Expands.

COLLEGE authorities have a new worry. It is the inva- sion of the Eastern football field by the professionals, who have at last captured the city of New York. Announcers state that the New York "Giants," a professional eleven coached by Bob Fowlwell, formerly of Pennsylvania and the Navy, will operate at the Polo Grounds next fall. And, to make matters worse, a pro- fessional manager of fighters, Billy Gibson, will be the prom- oter.

Colleges have feared the ad- vent of "pro" football and have fought its development with all manner of weapons, even to the threat to withdraw "letters" and college honors from varsity play- ers who turn professional.

But the turning has gone steadily forward, to the end that the New York football eleven will bring the total of members of the National Professional Football League, to 20.

Another Frankenstein.

UNIVERSITIES dread the day when they will stand in the position of being feeders for a mere moneymaking enterprise; but what they can do to prevent it without actually barring the game, is not apparent.

Football has grown to be so essential a part of every univer- sity that to stop it would entail severe hardships, particularly financial ones.

In many universities football represents heavy capitalization, due to "bowls" ranging from $500,000 to $2,000,000 in cost, and to real estate holdings that are tied up indefinitely for purely football purposes.

Also, without the financial re- turns from football, practically every athletic activity in the col- lege world would have to be either abandoned or operated at a dead loss.

Only One Serious Exposure.

THERE is, however, very lit- tle danger that collegians will attempt to play professional foot- ball during their college careers. The strictness of training prepa- ration and the close supervision of coaches makes that almost impossible.

Particularly is it unlikely to occur with the eleven of major professional importance; for the collegians would be detected im- mediately.

In the Midwest the National League is co-operating with the universities to the extent of bar- ring from its rosters all players still active members of univer- sity elevens and all players com- peting under assumed names.

The only serious case in which major university football players were caught was when a group of Illinois stars were detected playing "pro" football for two Southern Illinois city elevens.

They were promptly banished by the university.

Watch His Smoke.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE STRIBLING was a visitor yesterday, en route to Wichita for a fight.

Not much has been heard of Stribling of late, aside from a never-ending round of victories over hams, eggs and cheeses. For Stribling is in demand and is harvesting in the "sticks" purses of $75 and up. He fights two or three a week some- times; and because the opposition is not first-class, the events merely serve as workouts.

Lead in National

Defeat of Giants by Cubs Helps Pittsburgh—Detroit Walloped.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The Pirates were still leading the Na- tional League this morning, not- withstanding a Sabbath defeat by Brooklyn.

Zach Taylor of Brooklyn did his best for his neighbors by lacing out a home run in the ninth, to make the score 4-3, but mean- while, Chicago upset the Giants in a 16-inning joust at the Polo Grounds and the Corsairs are still a few points higher up the ladder than New York.

With Chicago one run ahead of the Giants and the bases loaded, Gabby Hartnett's disgust over rul- ings of the umpire took form in a wild heave. Young promptly raced home with the tying run, forcing the game into extra innings.

In the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth the Cubs threatened, but the deciding run did not come until Grigum doubled in the sixteenth. The final score was 9 to 8.

Balancing the twin defeat of leading National League con- tender, both Washington and Philadelphia triumphed in the American. Winning streaks were shattered by both victories. Eddie Rommel gave the Tigers but a single run as he scattered eight hits to yank the Athletics out of their slump, 8 to 1. Twenty-one hits were made by Philadelphia.

Teddy Lyons of the White Sox blanked the Yankees with five hits to win at 3 to 0 and Cleveland smothered the Red Sox under 18 hits to breeze home, 13 to 2.

St. Louis Masons Lose.

SEADALA, Mo., July 13.—The St. Louis Royal Arch Masons ball club was defeated here yesterday after- noon, 6 to 3, by the Missouri Pacific Boosters in a fast game. Both pitchers were southpaws. Four batters were credited to Cox for St. Louis and 11 to Heise for Seadala. Workman, a Booster fielder, made a home run.

Score by Innings:
Club 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R.H.E.

but was really pointed wrong. Stribling ought to be a first rank light heavyweight by the time he arrives at maturity. If he should develop a punch he would be one of the most for- midable fighters of his weight in several years.

For he has everything else but a wallop.

A Real Class.

FOR the first time since Bob Fitzsimmons and George Gardner fought for light heavy- weight honors, this to be a place in the world.

Today there are several real light heavyweights where for- merly the division was a sorry jest.

Among the prominent light heavies may be mentioned, world's champion Paul Beren- bach, American champion Gene Tunney, Harry Greb, Jack De-aney, Jimmy Delaney, Jimmy Flattery, Tom Gibbons, Mike Mc- Tigue and Young Stribling.

Paddock Second to St. Louis in Feature Event of French Meet.

By the Associated Press.

COLOMERS, France, July 13.—The American sprinters, Loren Murchison, of Newark, N. J., and Charlie Paddock, of Los Angeles, finished first and second respec- tively in the 200-meter dash, the chief event of yesterday's big hol- iday meet. Murchison's time was 20 seconds flat, one second behind Paddock's world mark, and one- fifth of a second behind the French mark held by Andre Mour- lon.

Murchison, seeing Paddock stum- bling at the tape tried to catch him, and both fell into a ditch at the side of the track. They suf- fered only a few bruises and scratches.

Neck and Neck Finish.

A crowd of some 15,000 was thrilled by the neck and neck finish of the Americans. Murchison having a bare two inches advan- tage over the Californian, who has been laid up for the last month with influenza.

Murchison and Paddock will run again on July 14 at the Paris sub- urban stadium, after which Mur- chison will go to England for the 100-yard and 220-yard events of the English championships July 18. Paddock will go to Stockholm and Helsingfors to fill engagements in Scandinavian meets.

The Swiss runner, Martin, who was second in the 800-meter run of the 1924 Olympic games won the 800-meter race in one minute, 54 4-5 seconds, beating the French record. Martin intends to go to New York in September on soli- citation of Paddock and Murchison for games to be staged in the Yankee Stadium.

The French champion Guillemot, did the 500 meters in 8 minutes, 45 seconds or 2 4-5 seconds under his own record.

The stands of the Olympic sta- dium were filled with many Amer- icans on holiday.

Hannibal 5, Eagles 2.

HANNIBAL, Mo., July 13.—One big inning, the seventh, when the locals scored all their runs, gave the Hannibal club a 5 to 2 victory over the quincy Eagles yesterday. Collinson, a new pitcher for the Eagles, hurled a good game but was poorly supported.

Girls' Relay Race

Event to Be Run in Connection With Tuberculosis Day Ball Game Wednesday.

The playgrounds entered in the girls' shuttle relay race, one of the athletic features of Tuberculosis Day, which will be celebrated at Sportsman's Park Wednesday, now exceed 30. This is the fourth year that this race has featured the oc- casion. For the last two years it has been won by the University City Playground and this team is ambitious to win it again this year.

Those that have already entered and are now holding regular prac- tice workouts include Blow, Shaw, Fox, Carr, Buder, Lyon Park, Man- chester, St. Louis Park, Dakota, Gamble, Souland, Fairground, O'Fallon, Sherman, Teamman, Col- umbus, DeSoto, Marquette, Papa Club, Carnegie, Murphy, Kildick, Franz, Pontiac, Mullaphy, Clay- ton and University City. Play- grounds at Webster Groves and Maplewood also plan to compete. Many girl scout groups are also entering teams.

William F. Yorgar, superintend- ent of municipal playgrounds, is in charge of the race, and he is being assisted by the following commit- tee: Carl Kamp, Joe Hennessey, Vernon Bradburn, George Thomp- son, R. Von Lehten and Charles Metz.

Rules of the contest are that the competing teams shall have six members each, all of whom must be under 16 years of age and not more than 62 inches in height. Every team must have a leader. Each organization will be allowed to enter one team and to carry two substitutes. Each girl will run 50 yards. Gold pencils will be given to members of the team win- ning first place, and there will be silver pencils for those who come in second and third.

Before Being Destroyed.

By the Associated Press.

SPRING LAKE, Mich., July 13.

A blazing ferryboat, the Comet, won a race with fire last night when she docked here after a quick run from midlake and landed her 50 passengers who had been huddled in the stern as the flames tore steadily down upon them.

This was discovered on the boat some distance from shore and the speed with which the boat made for this place saved to fan the flames beyond control of the crew and the passengers, many of whom were women and children.

As the boat slid against the dock men aboard her helped the women and children ashore and then jumped to the dock. The boat, which ran between Grand Haven and Spring Lake, was destroyed.

The origin of the fire has not been determined.

Marshall Haig Says They Will Not

Consent of the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 24.—Tanks and other motor equipment will not supersede the horse in the next war is the opinion of Field Marshal Haig. Acknowledging an honorary diploma as associate of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons recently, the Field Marshal expressed the opinion that the need of horses in future wars would be as great as in the past.

"We have heard a good deal about modern war inventions which are likely to supersede the horse," said the Earl, "but the production of these inventions invariably produces an antidote, and in order to gain the greatest efficiency in the long range of war appliances we will need well-bred horses for a great many years to come."

Medical Society Support Meeting at Rolla, July 24.

The first of a series of meetings, to educate the public in hygiene and to give instruction of a comprehensive nature for the prevention of disease, will be held July 24 at Rolla, Mo., under the auspices of the State Board of Health and the Missouri State Medical Association.

This meeting will make the inauguration of a public health program promised by Dr. Emmett P. North of St. Louis, president of the State Board of Health and of the Medical Association, when he was elected head of the association at Kansas City last spring. The meeting also is sponsored by Gov. Baker, who will be one of the speakers.

This plan for a campaign of publicity for the prevention of disease also embodies the principle of raising medical standards in Missouri and will be extended to the 23 councilor districts of the Medical Association.

Rolla, where the first meeting Surgeon-General of U. S. to speak, is to be held in the twenty-sixth district and embraces the counties of Crawford, Phelps, Pikes, Laclede and Dent. That the first meeting shall have the widest publicity throughout the State, the councilors of the other districts will attend and take part in the program.

Other speakers, Gov. Baker and Dr. North who will speak are Dr. A. R. McComas, of Sturgeon; United States Senator George H. Williams of St. Louis; Surgeon-General Cumming of the United States Public Health Service; State Senator Frank Harris of Rolla; Dr. James Stewart, State Health Commissioner; Dr. W. H. Breuer of St. James, and representatives of commercial and civic organizations of Rolla and vicinity.

Rolla is the State headquarters for the medical campaign against trachoma, a contagious disease of the eyelids, against which the United States public health service has been fighting for years, and the trachoma hospital is at Rolla. How this disease can be prevented or cured in its incipient stage will be shown at this meeting. Without the sanitary precautions that will be shown, blindness follows for sufferers from this disease.

To Seek Public Support.

The first duty of a reputable physician is to prevent diseases," said Dr. North today, "and the Missouri State Medical Association, to which only reputable physicians are admitted, now undertakes on a comprehensive scale the teaching of hygiene to the public, a service that will either prevent or control epidemics. Another duty of the association is to provide the public with reputable and properly qualified physicians, and in this respect public support will be sought for the elevation of medical standards in Missouri.

"No person can properly treat a disease with safety to the patient without having studied physiology, anatomy, chemistry, bacteriology, obstetrics and hygiene. Any person who attempts to treat the sick without a knowledge of these subjects, is a fraud and a menace to the public health."

Similar meetings in other councilor districts, to all of which a large public attendance will be invited, will follow the one at Rolla.

FRANCE'S BUDGET BILL

FOR 1925 FINALLY PASSED

Voted Points Regarding Income

and Business Turnover Taxes

Left for Future Action.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 13.—After being sent from the Chamber of Deputies to the Senate no less than six times, France's budget for 1925 was finally voted long after dawn this morning.

Financial Minister Caillaux remained to the bitter end, speaking in the Senate and Chamber at each reappearance of the measure and thus being prevented from going to the bedside of his wife, who was injured in an automobile accident near Angers yesterday.

Decrees were read closing the Senate's session at 5:45 a. m. and the chamber's at 5:15. The communists protested noisily as Premier Painleve read the decree.

The vexed points regarding deduction of income tax payments from the following year's income and relief of the smaller classes of traders from paying a business turnover tax were finally divorced from the bill with the Government pledging itself to introduce measures dealing with them at an early date.

As finally voted, the budget shows estimated receipts of 33,150,000,000 francs and expenditures of 33,127,000,000, giving a surplus of 13,000,000.

The Senate's vote of adoption was 278 to 8 and in the Chamber there was merely a show of hands without debate.

TON WILL SURPRISE YOU

IS THE BRITISH EMPIRE TO HAVE A BACHELOR KING?

Much Speculation Among All Classes in England Over the Prince of Wales

Should He Remain Single His Sister, Princess Mary, Would Be the Royal Hostess at Buckingham Palace.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 1.

WILL the next King of England occupy Buckingham Palace alone?

Or will he, like several distinguished members of the British aristocracy, bring home a beautiful bride from the Argentine, where he will visit after his present African trip?

The pros and cons of this question interest deeply the people of England.

Nobody really expects him to bring home a bride from the Argentine except two classes, but those two classes carry a good deal of weight in the discussion. They include, first, all those good folks who, absolutely unable to conceive the bare idea of a bachelor King on the throne of England, count confidently upon the Prince of Wales falling madly in love with some beautiful Latin-American woman and insisting upon his right as a free-born male, to make her his bride. The other class, somewhat less romantic and decidedly more far-sighted, declare that an alliance between the throne of Great Britain and the wealth and potential power of Latin-America would be a stroke of consummate genius!

About three billion dollars of these democratic days is a British capital is invested in South America, and a good big slice of it is sorry.

A South American Alliance.

Hostile anti-foreign legislation is now the fashion in practically all the more powerful South American states. The big British insurance companies are constantly assailed by restrictive legislation in Buenos Aires; the British-owned railway companies find the load heavier and heavier; British investors who escape hostile legislation, find their dividends paid to them in depreciated South American currencies instead of in sterling. At one stroke—so it is broadly hinted in some quarters—this deplorable tendency could be checked if, by a great marriage between the bluest of blue-blooded Argentinians and the Prince of Wales, the great world of Latin America turned and, for the first time, began to regard with pride and friendliness, the British throne!

How much better such an alliance, it is argued, than one with one of the minor royalties of Europe. How much better a royal marriage with Argentina than with Denmark?

Theory, perhaps, but not un-English, in the least.

And unlike some theories, we shan't have to wait very long to put it to the test!

Still, the fact remains that the bulk of informed opinion in England holds that the next King of England will be a bachelor. The heir apparent of the British throne, though still frankly enjoying the society of charming women, persists in showing the greatest indifference to the idea of marriage.

Needless to say, if a confirmed bachelor ascends the throne, it will mean a remarkable reorientation of English society.

To begin with, it should be clearly understood that there is nothing in the ancient British Constitution to prevent a bachelor from becoming King.

This, despite the fact that England has never before in its history had a bachelor for King!

All the constitutional authorities are agreed that although, admittedly, the Prince of Wales can not marry without the consent of his father—in other words, without royal consent—there is no power in the British Crown to force him to marry.

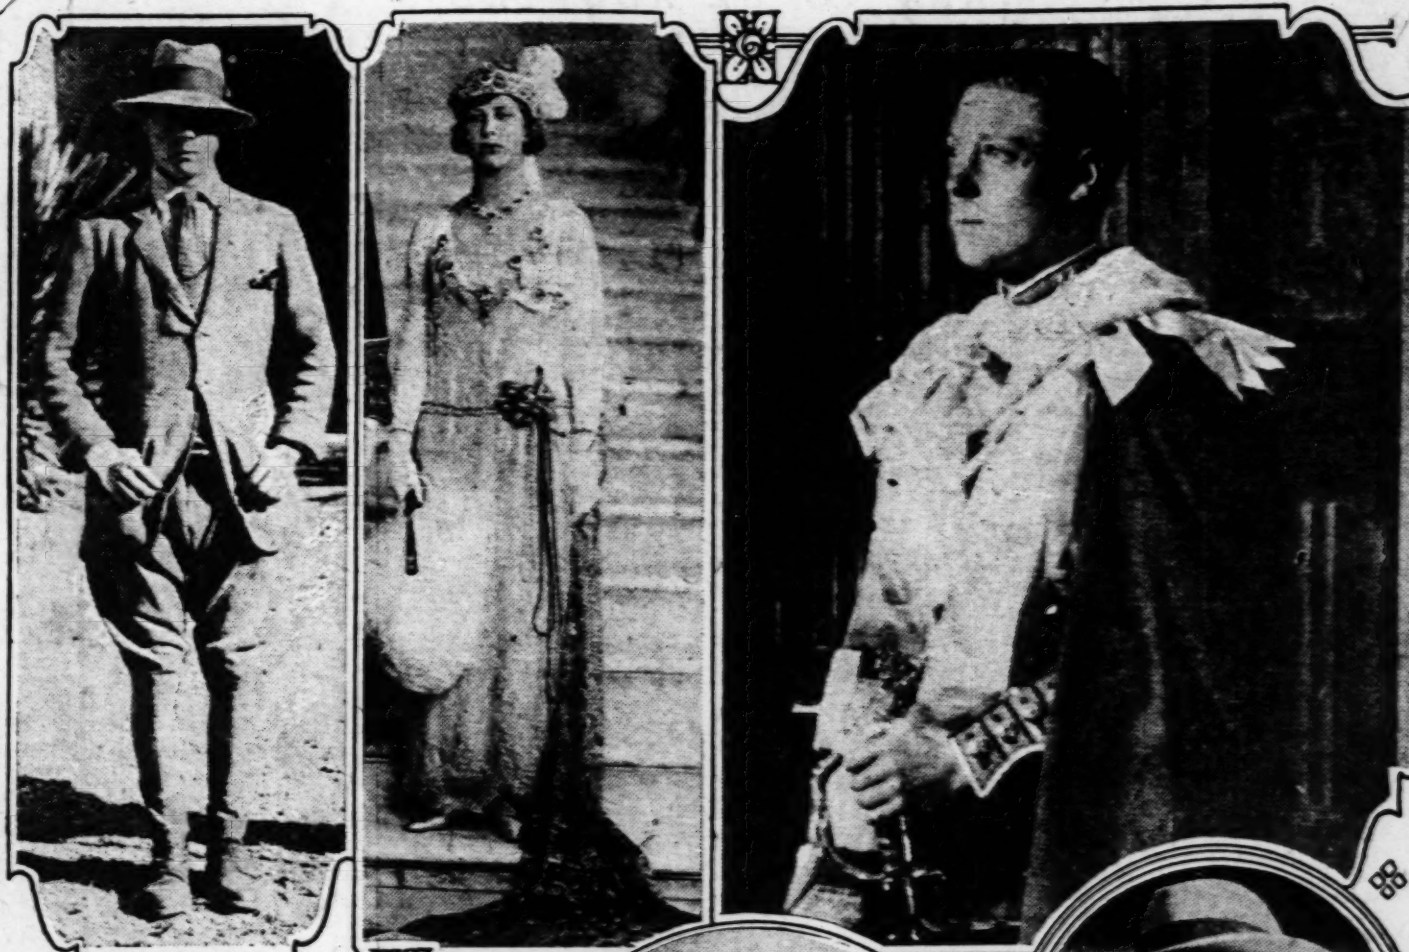

And by the same token, there is no constitutional power able to interfere with his serene tenure of office as a bachelor to the very end—short, that is, of absolute republicanism which is out of the question in the British Isles!

Not a word will be said to the next King of England as to whether he should or should not marry. But oh! the differences, to every humblest home in Britain!

Rhetoricians have talked about "the fierce white light that beats about a throne."

Stuff and nonsense!

The light that beats about a up with alacrity. At the first Court under the new regime, his sister, the Crown Princess of Prussia who was in England, stood by his side.

Of course, in the present instance, if Queen Mary survived King George, she might occasionally attend the Court when he ceased mourning, but it is doubtful if she would care to assume that exhausting burden once she had a good excuse for laying it down.

The Closed Door.

But if the Prince of Wales ascended the throne a bachelor, one big door in the British Empire would close with a bang!

As the Prince of Wales and Heir Apparent of the Throne, he might marry a "commoner."

As the King of England, he could not.

In other words, if he postponed his marriage until he ascended the throne—the mightiest throne left unshaken in the world—he would be expected (if he married at all) to choose, not a "sweet little English girl" unused to royal ways, but a woman of royal birth and position at least approaching his own. That is, we repeat, if he married at all.

But as he has already mentally canvassed, no doubt, the available royal beauties in Europe and apparently found them, on the whole, uninteresting, and as he is already closely related by direct descent to the Royal Family of Denmark "the cleanest blood in European royalty"—and the most attractive eu-enally—it is altogether probable that, beginning his reign as a bachelor, he would persist in his celibate ways to the end.

It has often been said that the King of England has only "three rights."

He has "the right to be consulted" by the Government of the day.

He has "the right to encourage" the Government of the day. And similarly, he has "the right to warn."

The Puritans' Grip.

But his most onerous duty as distinguished from his "rights" is that of being "the head of the moral order in Great Britain."

Not many people realize the immense grip which the Nonconformists have upon the British throne. All the things which the King of England must not do are things which the Puritans have all those hectic rumors of gambling, of wine, women and song, which—rightly or wrongly—they believed of the late King Edward before he ascended the throne. Forsaking with reluctance the comparative freedom and jollity of St. James' Palace for the austere restrictions of Buckingham Palace, the new King would find the "good people" of England disappointed, disapproving, dubious as to his ability, as a bachelor, to behave as the legal "head of the moral order." No one would open-laid down. And the Puritans, or Nonconformists, as they are called, ters are sapiently discussed. Nevertheless, the Prince of Wales, it is said, has never been impressed with the argument. The future, in short, is interesting!

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Hammed Wood.

FAIR within the mountain fastness, shielded by a lofty hill, grows a densely-wooded forest, deep and stately, dim and still.

Over it the spell of silence like a magic touch is laid, as if Nature halted, breathless, at the beauty she had made. It might be a spot held sacred for those earthly gods of yore that into the dust have fallen, from the dust to rise no more.

One can almost feel the presence of the Dryads and the Panes; one can almost hear their laughter, tinkling from forgotten dawns. Surely here the slim Diana held the wounded stag at bay; here Aurora, rosy-footed, heralded each joyous day. Flora strewed these purple blossoms that are smiling from the grass; it was here that young Narcissus found the brook, let's crystal glass. Dreams of dreams, all evanescent, drawn from half-forgotten lore, pass like mists across the vision, and the wood is still once more.

You owe little less for what you are not, than for what you are, to that discriminating mercy to which alone you owe your exemption from miseries.—Boyle.

"Yes," said Virginia, anxiously watching her mother, who seemed about to put her cup down on the top of the pile of papers. She got up and quietly drew the table away into safety—Stephen did so much dislike smudges.

"Indeed, I know that," said Catherine politely.

She and Mrs. Colquhoun had always been politeness itself to each other. She tried to smile as she spoke. She ought to smile. She always did smile when addressing Mrs. Colquhoun. And she couldn't. An awful vision of what Mrs. Colquhoun's face would change into if she could have seen her the night before, from her mouth stiff.

"She looks ill," thought Mrs. Colquhoun; and fervently hoped she wasn't going to be ill there.

Virginia offered them bread and butter. Mrs. Colquhoun would not eat; she would just have a cup of tea and be off again. Virginia must think she came there only for what she could get.

Virginia smiled, for this was one of her mother-in-law's moods, but she was of a more cheerful countenance than that even when she smiled she somehow managed to look serious. She had marked dark eyebrows, and her hair was drawn off her face, and neatly brushed back behind her ears. She looked very much rather like a schoolgirl in her term, dressed with the plainness and her own taste.

Stephen was not going to give a reason. She looked at her fellow mother-in-law helplessly.

Mrs. Colquhoun was struck by an air of dissipation about her. "Aging," she commented to herself.

"I had a longing to see Virginia," said Catherine at last; and it seemed a lame sort of reason, in spite of its being true.

Mrs. Colquhoun privately hoped this mightn't be the first of a series of such longings for it was in her opinion essential that a young couple should be left undisturbed by relations, and especially should they not be allowed to get a feeling that at any moment they might unexpectedly be descended upon. It made them jumpy; and what could be worse for a young married woman than to be made jumpy?

For three months Virginia's mother had left her most properly alone, only coming down occasionally for a night, and never without being asked. Was she now going to inaugurate an era of surprise visits? Stephen wouldn't like it at all, and even as Virginia had felt, a little uneasy. If she had seen the luggage she would have felt still more so, for it was not as Virginia had already noticed, the luggage of a mere week-end.

"How natural," said Mrs. Colquhoun. "And dear Virginia will, I am sure, have been delighted."

"Yes," said Virginia, removing her pile of papers out of reach of the jam to which her mother seemed to be helping herself a little carelessly—Stephen did so much dislike stickiness.

"But I hope you weren't worried about her," Mrs. Colquhoun continued. "She is in very good hands here, you know, and you may be sure that when her husband is away I look after her—don't I, Virginia?"

"Yes," said Virginia, anxiously watching her mother, who seemed about to put her cup down on the top of the pile of papers. She got up and quietly drew the table away into safety—Stephen did so much dislike smudges.

"Indeed, I know that," said Catherine politely.

"She looks ill," thought Mrs. Colquhoun; and fervently hoped she wasn't going to be ill there.

Virginia offered them bread and butter. Mrs. Colquhoun would not eat; she would just have a cup of tea and be off again. Virginia must think she came there only for what she could get.

Virginia smiled, for this was one of her mother-in-law's moods, but she was of a more cheerful countenance than that even when she smiled she somehow managed to look serious. She had marked dark eyebrows, and her hair was drawn off her face, and neatly brushed back behind her ears. She looked very much rather like a schoolgirl in her term, dressed with the plainness and her own taste.

Stephen was not going to give a reason. She looked at her fellow mother-in-law helplessly.

Mrs. Colquhoun was struck by an air of dissipation about her. "Aging," she commented to herself.

"I had a longing to see Virginia," said Catherine at last; and it seemed a lame sort of reason, in spite of its being true.

Mrs. Colquhoun privately hoped this mightn't be the first of a series of such longings for it was in her opinion essential that a young couple should be left undisturbed by relations, and especially should they not be allowed to get a feeling that at any moment they might unexpectedly be descended upon. It made them jumpy; and what could be worse for a young married woman than to be made jumpy?

For three months Virginia's mother had left her most properly alone, only coming down occasionally for a night, and never without being asked. Was she now going to inaugurate an era of surprise visits? Stephen wouldn't like it at all, and even as Virginia had felt, a little uneasy. If she had seen the luggage she would have felt still more so, for it was not as Virginia had already noticed, the luggage of a mere week-end.

"How natural," said Mrs. Colquhoun. "And dear Virginia will, I am sure, have been delighted."

"Yes," said Virginia, removing her pile of papers out of reach of the jam to which her mother seemed to be helping herself a little carelessly—Stephen did so much dislike stickiness.

"But I hope you weren't worried about her," Mrs. Colquhoun continued. "She is in very good hands here, you know, and you may be sure that when her husband is away I look after her—don't I, Virginia?"

"Yes," said Virginia, anxiously watching her mother, who seemed about to put her cup down on the top of the pile of papers. She got up and quietly drew the table away into safety—Stephen did so much dislike smudges.

"Indeed, I know that," said Catherine politely.

She and Mrs. Colquhoun had always been politeness itself to each other. She tried to smile as she spoke. She ought to smile. She always did smile when addressing Mrs. Colquhoun. And she couldn't. An awful vision of what Mrs. Colquhoun's face would change into if she could have seen her the night before, from her mouth stiff.

THE PASSING SHOW.
A BUNCH of malefactors go to serve a term in Boonville, Mo., And in about a year or so They're duly liberated. They say their lives will be sublime When they have finished doing time. And in the gentle art of crime, They're highly educated. From criminals of every grade, They learn the secrets of the trade— How easy money can be made In underworld professions. Becoming more or less hard-boiled, They keep their automatics oiled And many people are despoiled Of their hard-earned possessions.

Our old friend Able D. El Krim Is evidently out to trim The foes who are opposing him In that Moroccan scramble. And, as the French seem up a tree, A little bet on Able D., At present would appear to be A pretty nifty gamble.

QUITE SO.
It's an ill wind that blows no good. The merchants of Dayton, Tenn., are doing a thriving monkey business.

Robinson's drug store, "where the whole thing started," has had to lay in an extra large stock of postage stamps to meet the demand.

TOO TRUE.
The man on the sandbox says you can't keep anything around a newspaper office. Somebody swiped the seat cushion he swiped from somebody before he'd had it a week.

A 10-round, no-decision battle for the championship of the world between Jack Dempsey and Bartley Madden ought to create as much excitement as a chess match by cable.

A combat between the winner and Charley Weiner will probably be the next offering.

John D. Rockefeller is in favor of spanking, while Elbert H. Gary favors solitary confinement as a means of juvenile punishment. As both these gentlemen are pretty well fixed, it would appear that there is merit in both systems.

However, if the opinion of a mere pauper is worth anything, we would say that the recollection of an hour spent in a dark closet will remain long after the sting of the maternal hand has been forgotten.

But if you decide that the laying on of hands is the more efficacious, don't try to put over that old bunk about it hurting you worse than it does him.

RESCUED TWO FROM DROWNING

Miss Grace Willard Saved
Lives of Boy and Man 33, in Swimming Hole in Osage County.

WEIGHS ONLY 110 BUT IS A GOOD SWIMMER

Word of Her Feat Received Here by Father, Who Is Cashier for the Wabash Railroad.

Miss Grace Willard, 22 years old, of 5463 Delmar boulevard, weighs only 110 pounds, but she has kept up her swimming practice summer and winter. Her skill in the water enabled her to save two lives at a swimming hole in Osage County, Sunday. Word of her feat was received last night by her father, Homer L. Willard, cashier for the Wabash Railroad.

Miss Willard is the guest of Mrs. Sydney Hill of Jefferson City. Sunday they went to Maries Creek, near Westphalia, in Osage County. Soon after Miss Willard went into the water, a cry for help came from a 10-year-old boy, who could swim a little, but became exhausted and frightened when he found himself beyond his depth. With a few strokes, the young woman got him out of the deep water and to the bank.

Several hours later, a more difficult task came. Tom Nacy, 32 years old, his two sisters, Patricia and Margaret Nacy, and their place, Honora Nacy, were getting into a boat when the boat overturned; and all were plunged into deep water.

Miss Willard was called from a short distance away and found Nacy struggling to help his sisters and niece. Miss Willard, with James Schmitzer and Harold Tucker, formed a life-line by holding hands, and with some help from Nacy they got the women and the child to land safely.

Then it was seen that Nacy was missing. Miss Willard, diving, pulled him from under the boat, where he had been held when he had sunk, exhausted. At first he appeared to be drowned, and no pulse was perceptible.

Vigorous first-aid work by Miss Willard and a 12-year-old Boy Scout, Homer Talbot, restored Nacy to consciousness.

Miss Willard has been a swimmer since she was 7 years old. She has kept up her swimming almost to the exclusion of other games and sports. She is a former student of Missouri University, and a graduate of Forest Park College.

CAR OF BEEN SEIZED IN BELLEVILLE RAILROAD YARDS

Four Men From St. Louis and County Arrested While Unloading the Shipment.

Four men from St. Louis and St. Louis County were arrested, and three trucks bearing Missouri license tags were confiscated, in a beer raid in the Illinois Central yards at Belleville today.

The four men were unloading freight cars, which contained cartons of bottled beer, 24 bottles to a carton. At the time when Sheriff Schmitzer and a deputy interrupted them, they had unloaded about two-thirds of the contents of the car, or 270 cartons.

Those arrested described themselves as Nelson Strong, George Hermann and Ray Taylor of St. Louis, and George Baker of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

The trucks displayed the names of John Meyer, 105 Thrush; Frank B. Hummer, 241 Bell; and Oscar Hammon, 2187 Gravois. The first and third appear to be St. Louis street addresses.

The shipment was in a Mobile & Ohio freight car, and was consigned to George Smith of Belleville. The Sheriff did not learn where the shipment originated. After putting the men in jail the Sheriff placed the beer in the liquor cache at the Courthouse.

BOTTLED—ASHES NOT YEN-SHEE

Shipment to the East Interrupted

CHICAGO, July 14.—When narcotic agents raided the flat of Mrs. Rose McConnell they found not only opium but also a bottle of ashes, which they felt sure was yen-shee, the deadly residue of smoked opium. With the ashes they had planned to make a dramatic presentation of evidence in Federal court today. Yen-shee isn't even available for extinction. They sent a sample to a chemist. The chemist said they were not yen-shee. Then they decided to ask Mrs. McConnell what was in the bottle.

"These are the ashes of Pat McConnell, my husband," she replied.
